McNulty Dancers head for Ireland Eight members of the McNulty Irish Dancers will travel to Dublin next month with teacher Barbara McNulty The group qualified to compete in the All-World Championships of Irish Step Dancing, April 3 though 10.

The girls will perform two group dances, a traditional step performed by all contestants, and a figure dance. The students placed fifth in regional competition in Cleveland last November. Kelly Horton of Mundelein qualified to perform in solo competition.

The McNulty Irish Dancers have been a familiar sight in Lake County for more than 20 years. They perform at many community events and had a busy time this month when everyone is Irish. For story see Section B,

Martini, Waterway are winners

Emmons School District won its referendum bid to build an addition with 62 percent of the voters approving the measure.

However, once again the Antioch High School referendum was defeated. The final result was 4,190 voting no and 3,773 voting yes. This is fourth time the high school referendum has failed. This is the closest the referendum has come to passing.

In other results, the Fox River

Chain O' Lakes Waterway Management Agency will stay in existence after voters affirmed the agency's right to exist. The final tally was 75 percent voting yes and 25 percent voting no.

Judy Martini defeated longtime county board representative Jim Fields for the Republican nomination. Martini will now face Grant Farrell in November.

school was in Guam while after a night dive in Apra Harbor. While the accident is still under Horton, along with Charles investigation, according to reports Patten of Ozark, Mo., and Robert from Guam, the men attempted a difficult midnight recreational dive on the shipwreck, "Cormoran/Tokai Maru."

"They made a very difficult dive," said George "Pete" Peterson, a Guam diving expert, in an interview for the Pacific Press. "When you combine a deep dive, a wreck dive, a night dive, and a penetration dive, where you have to put out guidelines, it could be a real tough situation. Unless it's planned to the nth degree, it could be a very touchy dive."

Students say ACHS is getting more violent

Staff Reporter

This year violence and threats seem to be increasing at Antioch Community High School.

Students claim the problem is an increase in gang activity, while school officials point to girlfriend and boyfriend conflicts.

Two students, who wish to remain anonymous, say they were both threatened by a "wanna be" gang member. One of them said she overheard him threaten to "put a bullet in her head."

There are a lot more threats this year and a lot more to be afraid of," one of the students said. "It's more of a problem in school. When you are with people, you really have to watch what you say or you can be in major trouble."

The other student said she was threatened after trying to help her friend who was also threatened. Her friend was See SCHOOL page A10

Woodcrest Subdivision goes to court to clear up property title

MARY FOLEY

Subdivision, Woodcrest located in the far northwest end of Antioch Township, will be headed into court at the end of the month to clear up a title issue regarding homeowner association property. In addition, the Woodcrest Homeowners Association is in the process of re-incorporating and will now include homeowners from the old Sun Side Homeowners Association.

Problems started for residents in 1980 when John Krueger, a Cook County resident, formed a land trust through a bank in New York State. According to the association's attorney, John Casey, Krueger included in the property description the association's beach, parks, and easements. While Krueger's actions did not make him the owner of the property, it did cause a cloud to be put on the title of the property.

Krueger's actions did not immediately cause a problem for homeowners until he placed a dock and building on the property.

"The pier Krueger placed on the property is an environmental hazard," said Bill Linniewicz, a resident of the subdivision. "It was originally condemned by the DNR (Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources) when it was in Lake Delavan."

Before Woodcrest can go into court to sue to quiet title, however, the group must re-incorporate in order to have standing in court. Like a number of homeowner associations, especially those with summer-only residents, Woodcrest had not been active for a number of years.

"Our intent is to re-establish the Woodcrest Association. It is a simple task," explained Casey. "If the documents are signed today, the process could be complete at the end of the week. Then, we can go forward with the suit to quiet title. The whole thing could be cleared up by the end of the year."

In a kind of rural equivalent to buying the Brooklyn Bridge, Casey explained how the property controversy came about. "Anyone can just record the deed on any property," Casey told the homeowners. "Then, there is a cloud on the title. That's what happened here."

In the meantime, Woodcrest residents are fighting mad. Many are hoping to interest the State's Attorney's office in an attempt to lodge charges against Krueger. Krueger was unavailable for comment.

On a happier note, the association is now in the process of reorganizing and will include former members of the Sun Side Association. The group will continue to meet at the old Channel Lake school building, now owned Kenneth Domanchuk. Domanchuk, who also owns property in the Woodcrest area, operates his business, the Antioch Mall, from the school building, and will host future meetings of the association in the meeting hall in the basement. The group will continue to meet on Saturdays to provide greater opportunity for residents to attend.

During last week's meeting, eight residents volunteered to act as founding directors of the association's not-for-profit corporation. Steve Kauz, Dawn Jones, Shirley Scickel, Shirley Boring, Charles Gergai Senior, Bill Linniewicz, Ed Wulz, and Phil Gance will serve as directors of the Woodcrest Association until an election is held after the reincorporation. The group is expected to discuss details of the new association at the next meet-

"We have taken the first step," said Linniewicz. "Next, we will notify everyone and hold a membership meeting as soon as we have more facts. Hopefully, this will be in the next few weeks."

Township to consider donation for 4th of July

MARY FOLEY

Staff Reporter

Antioch Township has agreed to consider a donation request from the Antioch 4th of July Committee. Claude LeMere, Antioch's community development director, made a request to the township board for a donation of $3,500.

"The 4th of July is a tremendous celebration," said LeMere. "It is what government is all about. We use dollars to build citizens. That is what 4th of July is all about."

LeMere presented the financial statement to the board, and a discussion started regarding "Snookie-the-clown."

"We donated $200 for a clown last year," queried Trustee Claudette Skvarce. "Antioch has a clown club. Why didn't we use them? We are here to support the town. Since we have a clown club in Antioch, if we have a clown again, I hope we will use them."

The township board told LeMere that they would consider his request during this year's budgeting process. The Village of Antioch has pledged $7,000 towards the festivities.

"I think it is one of the best weekends in Antioch," said Trustee Tim Osmond. "We should consider this."

Township newsletter delay leads to clash

At the conclusion of the Antioch Township board meeting, a rather heated debate broke out between Township Supervisor Jim Fields and Trustee Claudette Skvarce over the timing of the release of the township newsletter. Skvarce attempted to discuss it at the meeting, but was told that she could not because it was not on the agenda.

Even though the meeting ended, the audience stuck around while purported to be looking at the zoning maps while Fields and Skvarce lost their tempers. The loud exchange, punctuated by some cursing was overheard by residents, as well as the Antioch Downtown Development Director, Claude LeMere. LeMere was present at the meeting on behalf of the 4th of July Committee.

In order to make the March 1 deadline, newsletter submissions need to be in by the end of February. According to Fields, he received a call on Feb. 20 from Skvarce looking for his submissions. Fields admits that at that point he did not have it complet-

"I never heard from her again about it until Monday," said Fields. "After the deadline date passed I was very busy with the election."

Fields had hoped the newsletter could have been put out before the upcoming county board election. Fields is the incumbent Republican County Board candidate facing two challengers, Kenneth Domanchuk and Judy Martini.

"We were ready for him on the 25th," said Skvarce. "He said he was too busy. I had asked Fields about getting the bulk mail stamp to send the newsletters. He said he was going to get it. But, he just kept putting it off. We were extremely disappointed."

The good news, is that there will be a township newsletter which will be out in the beginning of April. The township trustees plan to meet on March 18 to get the ball rolling.

"There will be a newsletter," said Skvarce. "It is our duty to inform the citizens and taxpayers of Antioch."

Campaign sign quarrel erupts during recycling

MARY FOLEY

Staff Reporter

Congratulations again to the Antioch Community High School Varsity Pom Squad for their first-place trophy earned on Saturday, March 5, for their novelty routine at the Fremd Drill Team Supersectional. This is the first time the Sequoit Poms have taken a first place at a supersectional competition.

Last month the squad earned a first-place trophy at Argo High School. The squad got their first, first-place trophy in the category of Pom/Dance with a superior rating. Besides taking first place, the ladies also received their third, first-place trophy in the category of Novelty, and a thirdplace with a superior rating for their kick routine.

Team members include June Lubkeman, Elizabeth Sobczak, Deanna Kelly, Becca Masucci, Becky Jamie Crank, Christophersen, Emily Harting, Heather Cramond, Helen Exarhakos, Jenny Santiemmo, Courtney Johnson, Melissa Hague, Missy Simbrowsky, Demetra Exarhakos, Raza Elez, Audra Miles and Jamie Gaa. The young women are coached by Joy Edge.

This newest honor qualifies the squad to attend the Illinois State Competition held March 19 at Bradley University in Peoria. Go get 'em girls!

Registration to start for ACHS summer school

MARY FOLEY

Staff Reporter

Antioch Community High School begins their summer school registration this week for students in District 117. There will be two sessions offered, June 13 through July 6 and July 7 through July 29. Both sessions will be from 8 a.m. to 12:20 p.m. There will also be several sevenweek courses available which will run from June 13 through July 29 from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m.

Students interested in driver education must make special arrangements. These students must contact the driver education chairperson, Mr. Brown.

Written approval from the student's counselor is required before enrollment. Registration forms are available at the ACHS Guidance Office and at all elementary schools that feed into Antioch Community High School. Graduating 8th-graders should see counselors at their own school. Registration ends May 27 for the first session and July 1 for the second.

Parents of students planning to attend summer school should make certain that family vacation plans will not conflict with class schedules. For more information call 395-1421.

State Bank offers scholarship

State Bank of the Lakes, formerly State Bank of Antioch, will award its fifth annual College of Lake County two-year scholarship to an Antioch Community High School graduate planning to attend the college.

The scholarship, open to ACHS seniors for the academic year 1994-95, includes full tuition and books.

Roger V. Manderscheid, executive vice president and ACHS bank liaison, cites criteria for awarding the scholarship includes scholastic achievement, school activities, community service and financial need.

Students and parents interested in more information may contact an ACHS guidance counselor.

Manderscheid urges undergraduate students to begin early preparation for the State Bank scholarship award.

St. Peter Board to hold election

On April 30 two members of the school board, Nancy Morici and Cynthia Vandrush, will have completed their terms. St. Peter Parish consequently will vote for their replacements. To provide for a smooth transition in selecting their replacements, the school board has developed and adopted the following procedures for nominating, qualifying and electing members of the parish school board. Terms are for a period of three years. Members may serve a maximum of two elected terms.

The election committee will be appointed annually by the school board chairman: To include ex-officio members of the board and board members.

The election will be held on April 24.

Voting will take place after each Mass (including the 5:30 p.m. Mass on April 23). All adult parishioners or parents of St. Peter School children are eligible to vote. Parish rolls will be used to determine voter eligibility. Election committee will be responsible to appoint election judges.

A simple majority will be sufficient to elect a member. In the event of a tie, a runoff election will be held on the following Sunday. Results of any runoff election will be announced on the Sunday after the runoff.

Election results will be published and announced on Sunday, May 1.

Elected members will be seated at the first regularly scheduled meeting after the election, i.e., in May.

Ballots will be made available in Fr. Frawley (church) Hall after each Mass. Absentee ballots are available at the school office.

Prospective member must qualify according to the school board requirements: Reside in the community for at least six months; be a parish member or parent of St. Peter School child; must be a minimum of 18 years old. No person employed by the school board may serve on the board.

Candidates for board membership must submit their Application-Petition signed by at least 10 parishioners or parents of St. Peter School children, to the principal, no later than 3 p.m. Tuesday, March 8. Application-Petition forms will be available at the school office beginning Feb. 1. Names will appear on the ballot in the order petitions are filed.

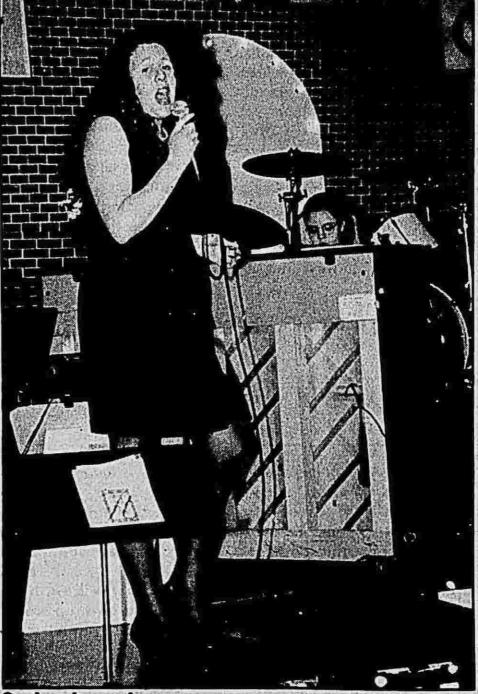

The election committee will be responsible for certification of all applicants. Election committee will accept all Application-Petitions. Election committee will determine eligibility and acceptance of candidates to the school board.

Announcement of qualifying candidates will be made at the regular school board meeting of March 10.

In the event a candidate does not qualify, he/she will be advised of the decision as well as the reason for his/her failure to obtain certification prior to March 10.

Any candidate will have the opportunity to question the election committee should he/she fail to obtain certification and present his/her case in favor of certification prior to March 10.

Election committee will be dissolved, after completion of election.

Antioch named Tree City USA

"Antioch has again been named Tree City USA," Mayor Marilyn Shineflug said. "It is the second time the village has received this national recognition," she added.

"The Tree City USA honor comes from the National Arbor Day Foundation, a nonprofit educational organization dedicated to tree planting and environmental stewardship," Shineflug explained.

"Communities entering the nationwide program receive the Tree City USA designation upon recommendation by state foresters, who co-sponsor the program," said Bud Newton, cochairman of the Antioch Arbor Day Committee. "Communities qualify which meet the following standards: a city tree ordinance, a legal tree governing body, a comprehensive urban forestry program and observance of Arbor Day," he explained.

"Tree City USA communities receive a flag with the program's logo and a walnut-mounted plaque," said Al Little, environmental commission chairman and co-chairman of the Arbor Day Committee. "Winners also receive Tree City USA community signs. Maple leaf stickers will indicate additional qualifying years," he added.

Joe Huber, village arborist, and Rich "Ole" Olsen, Arbor Day Committee member, will attend an awards ceremony at the Morton Arboretum on March 24. They will be presented with the Tree City USA flag and other recognition materials which will be presented to the Antioch Village Board.

"A community's tree-planting program is a living memorial to the citizens' concern for the quality of life," said Olsen. "The trees we plant and care for today will cool our cites, fight pollution, conserve energy and give wildlife a home for years to come," he explained.

"I enjoy working with village officials and residents to help plant and preserve trees on village property," said Huber. "An effective community forestry program is an ongoing process of renewal and improvement— a program of tree planting and care that continues through the years," he said.

"A village wide Arbor Day Program will be observed on Saturday, April 23, when our school children and volunteers will be planting trees in Williams Park," said Little. "We will again give away 1,500 free evergreen seedlings (14 to 22 inches in height), up to five per person, to any Antioch resident that agrees to plant and care for them," he added.

To reserve a free seedling, write to Al Little, Arbor Day Committee, P.O. Box 288, Antioch, IL 60002 or call 395-

More sign mischief reported

MARY FOLEY

Staff Reporter

A complaint was filed by Antioch resident Chris Peters after she spotted two men removing political signs of Judy Martini on Grass Lake Road. At press time there had been no confirmation from the States Attorney's office, however, Peters made a report to the Lake County Sheriff's Department Saturday, March 12.

"I was parked in the Bootleggers on the corner of Grass Lake Road and Rena when I saw a black and silver Chevy pickup truck pull across the street," said Peters. "I saw two men get out. They walked around the truck. I then saw a man, who I later learned was John Fields, pull up a Martini sign and toss it on the ground. He then put up a Jim Fields sign in its place.

"I pulled across the street," Peters continued, "and I copied down the license plate number. I yelled for them to stop, but they ignored me, got into the truck, and took off."

Peters then contacted the Sheriff's Department by phone. According to Peters, she was told that it would be taken to the States Attorney's office on Monday.

However, by Tuesday, neither Peter's nor Judy Martini had been contacted by the States Attorney's office.

"No one has contacted me," said Peters. "Since I was an eyewitness, you would think they would contact me."

Martini was very upset by loss of signs in this campaign. She had even offered a reward of $1,000 for any information that resulted in the conviction of the sign destroyers.

Peters, however, has refused any reward. She feels it was her civic duty. "There are much more important things people can do for this area than to sabotage the electoral process."

Trivia question-"What do Beth Boerman and Lindsey Paige Filips have in common?" Answer-"They share the same March 3 birthday."

While MeeMee's girl number two was busy being born, Beth Boerman was busy getting her "official" license to drive on her March 3, 16th birthday.

That's right, folks, "MeeMee" has another healthy, beautiful granddaughter to spoil and love. Little Lindsey Paige made her way into the world at 10:31 a.m., March 3. She weighed in at eight pounds and four ounces and was born at Condell Medical Center in Libertyville.

MeeMee, PopPop and "big" sister Alyssa got to hold her when she was only two and one half hours old.

Queen Alyssa did not appear to be too impressed with baby Lindsey's arrival. She was definitely more in tune to playing with the blood pressure equipment, sucking on some of Barb's ice cubes and enjoying the juice and crackers brought to her by the floor nurse.

On the other hand, "MeeMee" quickly realized that Lindsey's appearance would be quite and wonderful acceptable indeed.

Congratulations, Barb and Dan and once again thanks for the beautiful addition to the Schmehl/Filips family.

Help

As usual I got extremely involved in watching the Winter Olympics. My favorite events were the downhill skiing, the speed skating and the various figure skating events.

As a result of Tonya Harding's difficulty with her laces, I think I thought up a new joke-"How many blanks (you fill in the blank) does it take to help Tonya lace up her skates?"

Oh well, antics and all, the outcome was favorable. I agreed with the judges choices in the women's figure skating competition-Oksana Bayul for the Gold: Nancy Kerrigan for the Silver; and Chen Lu for the Bronze.

Enough already

It's been a long, cold, snowy winter. However, one must admit nothing in nature is prettier than a batch of white, fluffy, new-fallen snow.

Spring is here a little more with each passing week. Soon we will be complaining about the flies, mosquitoes, bumble bees and wasps, not to mention the humidity and heat.

One must learn to cope and enjoy the variety of elements that each now season brings with it. In my case, while I enjoy the beauty of each season, I must admit my favorite time of year is Springtime.

Appointment

Applicants for the Grass Lake School board of Education vacancy created by the resignation of Donald Fechtner had approximately two weeks to obtain, complete and return the applications to the school.

At a special board meeting on Feb. 28, the board interviewed the interested parties. When all was said and done, Linda Boerman was appointed to fill the vacancy.

Congratulations, Linda, and the rest of the board members would like to welcome you aboard and are looking forward to working with you.

Science Fair

Once again, the Grass Lake School Science Fair was a huge success. There was a wonderful turn out of family and friends to view the may science projects displayed in the school auditori-

The top three projects in the fair were "Best in Fair"/Josh White: "Second Best"/Steve and "Third Franzen; Best"/Denise Lorenz.

The three Grass Lake School winners will compete in the Regional Science Fair at Niles North High School on Saturday, March 19.

Kindergarten sign-up

Kindergarten registration was held at Grass Lake School on Tuesday, March 15. In order to be cligible to attend kindergarten during the 1994-95 school year, a child must be five years of age on or before Sept. 1.

A birth certificate and proof of residency must be presented at time of sign-up.

If you missed the kindergarten roundup and would like to register your kindergarten child for fall entry, please contact the school at 395-1550 for further information.

Eye opener

Little Krissy and Lauren Foerster recently had their eyes opened to the silly/comical ways of a two-year-old. During a recent visit to the home of "The Lizard", they visited with Alyssa Janelle and laughed at the funny things she did.

They especially enjoyed Alyssa's performance of "Little Red Riding Hood", Complete with cape and shopping bag of food carried on her way through the woods to grandmother's

Also, congratulations are in order to Lauren for doing a great job on her "Young Author" book and winning the first place recognition in Marilyn Bowen's first/second grade combo class at Grass Lake School.

Congratulations, Lauren. Maybe someday I can get an opportunity to read your fine story.

Lotus School

ENGAGEMENT-

Amann-Hogan

Mr. Del Amann, former mayor of Round Lake, announces the engagement of his daughter, Cecile Amann, of Gurnee, to Patrick Hogan of Gurnee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hogan of Antioch.

The ceremony will be performed by Father Hanley of St. Peters Church in Antioch on May 7.

The bride-to-be is a 1977 graduate of Round Lake Senior High School and attended the College of Lake County. She is employed as an accounting manager for Bannockburn Travel, Inc., in Bannockburn. She was also crowned Miss Round Lake in 1977.

The groom-to-be is a 1976 graduate of Antioch Community High School and attended the College of Lake County. He is employed as a superintendent for Maneval Construction Co. in Grayslake. He is a six year veteran of combat heavy engineer BN in the U.S. Army.

The couple plans to settle in Grayslake.

Shop Antioch Take an Easter stroll around town

With Easter quickly approaching (April 3), it's time to make plans for spending time with friends and family. Your To do list might include: Decorating eggs, filling baskets, new Easter outfits, visiting the Easter Bunny, decorating your home, going to church, picking up a hostess gift, or reserving your favorite video rentals for a lazy day at home.

See the Easter Bunny in the gazebo downtown this weekend and next. Be sure to mark your calendar for the Easter Parade on Saturday, March 26, at 11 a.m., downtown Main Street. Following the parade will be an Eggcellent Easter Adventure at the Antioch Lower Grade School for kids ages 2 to 9.

Visit Party Poppers to select your decorations and paper products. Floral Acres is brimming with Easter lilies, mums and fresh-cut arrangements to brighten your home. The Easter Bunny has already stopped by the Tulip Patch and you know how quickly bunnies multiply! There are wooden, fabric, ceramic, resin, and crochet bunnies just waiting for a new home. If you need to send a floral arrangement across the miles, talk to Lasco's Florist about FTD arrangements. JJ Blinkers has seasonal greeting cards, along with Easter banners and windsocks to brighten the outside of your home.

Remember to order dessert for that special Easter dinner. Baskin-Robbins is taking orders for ice cream cakes and specialties now. Call soon to reserve yours. Stop by Bran Nuts for candies and nuts for Easter baskets. Homemade Easter baskets are fun and creative and add that personal touch. Perhaps a piece of jewelry would make a memorable holiday for your wife or loved one. Patricia's has some wonderful basket fillers and Amish hand-crafted accessories that would fill a basket nicely. Sunshine Books specializes in religious keepsakes appropriate for the holiday. If you have a young teen in your home, fill their basket with bike accessories from Schwinn Bikes, or if they are a budding musician, perhaps some new sheet music or equipment from Lakes Area Music.

Spring apparel has arrived in plenty of time for Easter. Four Squires has new fashions for men and women perfect for the holiday. You'll find a nice size range of Easter dresses for girls (newborn through size 14) at Choosey Child. BJ's Fashions can outfit the casual male or for him in the latest three-piece suit. Visit Dolly's Second Showing for her latest spring arrivals. The Clothes Connection offers a broad size range for women, plus their new petite collection for spring.

If a lazy day at home is more your style, call Action Video to reserve a new release...since Mama Nuccio's is right next door, pick up a pizza to take home.

Editor's note: Shop Antioch is a weekly newsletter showcasing Antioch's merchants and retailers. Prepared and written by Barbara Porch of Choosey Child.

The Second Annual Eggcellent Easter Adventure is an egg hunt for ages 2 to 9 and will be Saturday, March 26 at approximately noon on the open fields behind the Antioch Lower Grade School. After the Easter Parade, hop down to the Antioch Lower Grade School to join the Easter Bunny for the egg hunt. Cost is $2 per child.

Lakes area band

The Lakes Area Community Band is a full concert band with the goal of returning musicians to performing ensemble. Membership is open to adults or high school students. Band membership is volunteer, with no audition required, simply a desire and commitment to making music. The band repertoire will be drawn from traditional concert band music, transcriptions of baroque and classical music, marches, theatre and contemporary music. Rehearsals take place on Monday nights from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Antioch High School Band Room. Call 395-5566.

Ryan, Walgreens bring 'Seniors on the Go!'

Secretary of State George H. Ryan, the Walgreen's Company and the City of Antioch are offering a new "Seniors on the Go!" program to all citizens in the Antioch area.

This free program combines a two-hour Rules of the Road Review Course, a vision examination for drivers license renewal and a simulated hands-on driving experience.

"I understand the importance senior citizens place on independence, mobility and safety," Ryan said. "This program provides a comfortable, risk-free and enjoyable place for senior citizens to practice their driving skills."

The Rules of the Road Review Course covers basic traffic safety information and Illinois laws. Following the course, participants successfully completing the vision examination will receive a certificate valid for three months on drivers license renewals.

The driving simulators, which duplicate the driver's seat of a car, take senior citizens through a variety of everyday driving situations, measuring such skills as braking, signaling and speed control.

Once the individual has completed the program, secretary of state staff members review the results, pointing out safety tips to remember when on the road.

While recommended, the Rules of the Road Review Course is not required for a driver to take part in the simulation program.

The Rules of the Road Review Course will be held on March 21 from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., and 12:30 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. at the Antioch Township Office, 99 West Route 173, Antioch. The simulation program will be from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. March 22 through April 15 by appointment.

For more information or to schedule simulator appointments, call 395-3378.

Traveling team improves to 7-1

The Lindenhurst Stars (under 13) improved their record to 7-1 by defeating Cary Blackmore 2-1 at Poplar Creek Sports Centre-Hoffman Estates.

This Sunday the second place Stars face the Hoffman heat (8-0) in a showdown for a share of first place.

Volunteers needed for Lake County

Over 1,000 volunteers are needed for the upcoming event on Sunday, May 1. More than 4,500 people are anticipated to take part in the races, making it the largest running event outside the city of Chicago. Volunteers are needed along the 26.2 mile course, which stretches from Zion to Highland Park, as well as at Lake County Races' Sports Expo, April 19 and 30 at the Sheraton North Shore Inn, Northbrook.

The fourteenth annual Lake County Races will feature running and walking events of various distances including a Marathon (26.2 miles), Half-Marathon (13.1 miles), 10K Run (6.2 miles) and a 3.5 mile Fun Run and Walk. In addition, there is a Relay and Team competition and a relay competition for Special Olympians.

Volunteer areas include: registration, packet pick-up, souvenir sales, course marshals, finish line, water/aid stations, gear check, entertainment and crowd control, to name a few. All volunteers will receive a special edition Lake County Races t-shirt. Sign up today to have a front row seat as some of the finest runners in the country make their way to the finish line.

Proceeds from the event Glenkirk benefit Northeastern Illinois Special Olympics. If interested in becoming a volunteer, call the Lake County Races Office at 266-RACE.

Potter said he prepared for the four-day show by stripping the car and repainting it.

He said the highlight of last year's racing season was winning a 30-lap featured race at Lake Geneva Raceway.

"Comptition is close throughout the quarter-mile track," he said.

His sponsors are: R.A. Addams of McHenry; Trubo Blue Racing; First Auto of McHenry and the Brat Stop in Kenosha.

"My family has been in racing since I was a little boy," he said.

He said the earliest BARS show ever was fun.

Show sponsors included: Lakehurst Mall Merchants Assn.; Toft Auto Racing's Wilmot Speedway; Lake Geneva Raceway; Great Lakes Dragway; Larry's Mobile Service; Mike Napierala's Racing Photos; Midwest Racing News and Checkered Flag Racing News.

Racing news:

The Club-All Star Circuit of Champions will make two stops this season at the Wilmot Speedway.

The all Stars will invade June 1 for the 12th annual Wilmot Open Sprints and the national sanction Aug. 3.

The racetrack is scheduled to open its 41st season on Saturday, April 9 with sprints plus the second round of the Wisconsin Modified Challenge Series which was postponed from last fall. A third division, to be announced, will also be on the program.

Wilmot Speedway will not be using the time trials for any of its divisions on regular race nights. A handicap system of average points for the past two nights completed will be used. Feature fields will still be determined by heat race and last chance qualifi-Racing will begin at 6:45 p.m. with hot laps slated for 6 p.m.

A sprint car challenge will be held at Wilmot each week.

Wilmot promoter Ray Toft announced the agreement has been reached with Biene Excavating of Roselle to sponsor special sprint car challenge.

The shootout will be a special 10-car, 10-lap race at the track to be held on a date yet to be announced.

BEST wrong

Editor:

I attended the Alliance for Better Government's forum on the Antioch High School's referendum this past week. I feel compelled to respond to comments made by members of the BEST group at this meeting. I write this letter as a citizen of Antioch, a parent of a high school student, and as a public school administrator. I disagree with their comments that Americans have lost confidence in the system of public education and are fleeing the schools. Public opinion polls indicate a high level of satisfaction and confidence in our public schools. There is a responsibility to constantly improve the quality of education for our students. This, however, will be accomplished by providing the best opportunities for our children.

From my experiences, the public schools are filled with many caring, competent, and dedicated individuals. The campaign logic of BEST suggests all schools, not just ACHS, are filled with self-serving, money-grabbing teachers and are led by fat cat administrators who are incompetent.

I am, however, more concerned by their logic that our children don't deserve the right to a quality education. As a progressive community, don't we owe it to our future generations to offer better than the lowest spending per pupil and the most overcrowded classrooms in the entire Lake County? Doesn't our community want to be known for quality education at a reasonable

If you feel that the schools need to be improved then get involved. Volunteer your time, join a committee, or get on the School Board. There are plenty of opportunities, just ask at your local school The schools will change from the inside, not by critics constantly bashing them.

Creative Glass Designs celebrates opening

Creative Glass Designs, located at 43474 N. Route 83, held its grand opening on Saturday.

The business specializes in sandblasted glass, ceramic mugs, crystal and mirrors and is owned by Antioch residents Al and Barbara Exner and their daughter, Christine. Al Exner is a glassmaker of windshields and storefronts.

"A lot of people assume that glass etching is very expensive, but it's not. It was years ago when everything had to be done by hand. Now we have computers and it has become cost-effective," said Al Exner.

Christine Exner creates the designs with a computer, however, each piece is individually sandblasted.

Creative Glass Designs has contracts from coast to coast. Recently, the business etched 500 glasses for a resort/spa, Thilani, in Honolulu, Hawaii.

Police nab burglar Grainger begins zoning hearings

Through a photo lineup, police were able to identify a 21year-old Round Lake Beach man who is now being held on $250,000 bond in the Lake County Jail for a Fox Lake home invasion.

A woman who lives at the Devlin Apartments across from the Fox Lake Police Department, said she was awakened a couple weeks ago after she discovered an intruder in her home.

Bryan Lewis of 373 Meadow Green was charged with two counts of home invasion, robbery and burglary, said police. Fox Lake Police Chief Jim Busch explained that home invasion is a "class X" felony.

During the incident in which

Lewis had been surprised by the resident, he allegedly grabbed the woman by the neck and demanded money from her.

The victim told the woman she had no money, and then Lewis ordered her to help him unplug the stereo so he could steal it.

Lewis apparently then fled from the scene and police searched for him with descriptions given from tenants as he is a former resident of the apartment building and was seen as a frequent visitor of the complex.

Police issued a warrant for his arrest, and they located Lewis, from the photo lineup identification made by the victim.

It is reported the victim moved out of her apartment since the incident.

W.W. Grainger Inc. began the first of what could be multiple testimonies before the Lake County Zoning Board of Appeals to request a zoning change for its wish to build a national corporate center off of Rte. 60 between the Tollway and St. Mary's Rd.

Grainger, a machine and equipment distributor now based in Skokie, hopes to convert 525 acres of land into multiple uses, including open space, residential and urban zoning.

The land is already zoned residential and 257 acres has been donated to the Lake County Forest Preserve. The parcel of land in question is 155 acres the company wants changed to urban zoning to build a 1.5 million square foot, multi-building office campus as its national headquarters.

For three hours Charles Sieman, Grainger attorney, questioned urban planner Thomas Dyke on the relationship between Grainger's proposed conservation development plans and the county's framework plan.

Jim Baisley, vice president of Grainger, said, "Our proposal is fully consistent with the County Framework Plan."

Baisley added that Grainger plans on presenting six more witnesses before the zoning board. Grainger witnesses, he said, will discuss concerns over the domino effect, traffic and other areas.

"Our proposal is fully consistent with the County Framework Plan.".

—Jim Balsley

While citizen watch groups haye said Grainger would set a precedent for other companies to develop the land further north of Rtc. 60 along the Tollway, Baisley said Grainger's forest preserve land blocks any immediate domino effect.

"People are saying that Grainger can move anywhere in Lake County. That site has the Tollway access we want and the land possibility for future growth," Baisley said. "The property is there. Something is going to happen to it whether we're there or not."

Furthermore, he said the land donation to the Forest Preserve was, contrary to many beliefs, not a bribe.

"The concept of conservation development is an emerging national concept," Baisley said.

Sheel Yajnik, staff to the Lake County Zoning Board of Appeals, said the board needs five out of seven votes to recommend granting a rezoning change.

After a series of fact-finding hearings, the zoning board evaluates the findings and submits a recommendation to the Lake County Board, which ultimately votes on the manner, Yajnik said.

She also said both the petitioner and those objecting to the petitioner will have the opportunity to present their cases, which she expects to take at least four more hearings.

The zoning board, in the end, she said, will compare the standards of the framework to Grainger's proposals and determine if those standards were met.

Homeless man assaults officer

A man who had apparently made an abandoned plant on Rollins Rd. his home, was arrested by Fox Lake police after he flashed a knife and cussed out a Mundelein Police officer walking his dog.

Charles F. Rice, 44, had been living for quite some time in the old Evanston Fuel and Materials building at 2900 Rollins Rd., according to police, when on March 13 at around 8 a.m. he came out of the plant "yelling and using profanity" to a resident walking his dog.

Rice then produced a small knife, according to Robert Maddock, a Mundelein police officer. Maddock went directly to Fox Lake police and related the incident and Rice was arrested shortly after on charges of aggravated assault and disorderly con-

Police said they will try to have Rice evaluated, as he may have possible mental problems.

Rice is currently in the Lake County Jail.

County expecting 57 road projects

SPENCER SCHEIN

The one thing most people seem to dislike more than the sub-zero and blizzard conditions of winter is the ensuing construction season, which causes havoc for everyone involved.

To ease some of hassles and tension of area drivers, a construction map for northeastern Illinois has been put together, giving dates, locations and possible detours for all of the scheduled spring road construction in the collar-county area.

The map was completed by the Chicago Area Transportation Study (CATS), as commissioned by the Council of Mayors, which received $50,000 in federal planning money, said Janet Pilewski, CATS chief council administra-

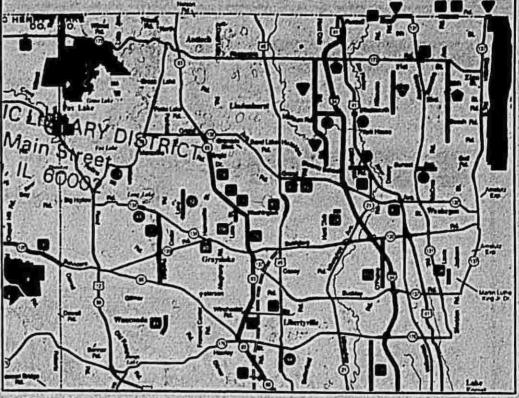

CATS surveyed almost 400 agencies and municipalities this past December as a way of telling other agencies and municipalities what other construction projects would be happening and for the benefit for commuters, Pilewski said.

The map lists every construction project planned for state, county and municipal roads in suburban Cook, Lake, McHenry, Kane, DuPage and Will counties.

At least two more are planned for distribution this year, listing summer and winter projects, and possibly a third for any projects not yet completed due to delays.

The Managers Mayors Association had But loggings, similar map for a while and found it most useful in leaf Fire what others were planning Apple Pilewski said. The idea was to expand on their success, she added.

Lake County residents should get ready for the 57 projects scheduled to be completed within the county, 29 of which the Lake County Division of Transportation is handling, 20 by the Illinois Department of Transportation, seven by the municipalities and a resurfacing of I-94 between Russell Road and Route 22, beginning this June. THIS WEEK Great Lakes honors historic 'Golden 13'

Seven surviving members of the "Golden 13" were honored in an emotional ceremony at Great Lakes Naval Training Center last week. The veterans, who served during World War II, were commissioned 50 years ago as the first black officers in the U.S. Navy.

"This is a great day at Great Lakes," Rear Adm. Mack C. Gaston, commander of the Naval Training Center, told the audience assembled in Recruit Training Command's Drill Hall 1200. "These 13 men became history....They did not plan it. They were just responding to their country's call. Today it is our turn to recognize them at this 50th milestone, and to say - thanks."

Keynote Speaker Jesse Brown, Secretary of Veterans Affairs, declared that the Golden 13 "represent a powerful chapter in our history, and they honor us today with their presence. They have taught us to keep the faith while working toward success.

"They had a dream which united them," Brown continued. "They paved the way for future generations. They showed it is people who make history. We must never forget what these

"Are you OK?"

It's a simple inquiry that often goes without saying until someone is not OK. And many times that is especially true for homebound seniors or physically challenged people.

Remember that Chicago elderly woman who literally froze in a kneeling position in her ice-flooded basement? It was thought that she was there for days before anyone noticed her disappearance.

Sometimes a societal void exists for people to check on their senior or physically challenged neighbors-even if they are family.

To fill that void the Lake

County Sheriff's Department is offering the "Are You OK?" program, which is a computer based telephone system that phones living alone, infirm seniors or physically challenged adults at a pre-determined time each day.

Upon the party's answer, the computer voice announces, "This is the Lake County Sheriff's Are You OK? telephone reassurance system. If you are OK, please hang up the phone now and have a good day. If there is a problem, stay on the line and sheriff's personnel will be with you immediately."

According to Lake County Deputy Martin Smith, the program is designed for somebody who does not have someone to check on them.

"It's a way to prolong someone's independence," Smith said. "They can feel a lot more secure at home."

Since its induction on March 1, 35 people have subscribed to the service.

In addition, Smith said there are 17 volunteers from the Lake County Advocacy Program who are assisting the Sheriff's department in identifying interested persons in need of the service.

The department also collects vital information such as the person's name, address, doctor, next of kin, clergy, medical history and other emergency contacts. All the information appears on a computer screen when an emergency arises.

"We have a list of people as a back up to check on them," Smith said, adding that the Sheriff's Office will dispatch the local police department if the other contacts are unavailable.

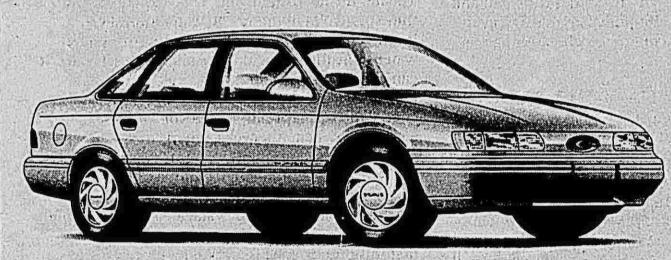

If the telephone is not answered, Smith said, the computer automatically recalls the party five more times. If no one answers by the fifth call, the computer alerts Sheriff personnel and the appropriate action is taken.

Smith suggests that if subscribers know they will be away from home for any length of time, See HOMEBOUND page B4

Housing exec charges grow

WAUKEGAN-The North Chicago Housing Authority executive is facing more charges. Eddie Ross, age 65, of Gurnee, now faces 13 charges against him for allegedly using federal money for his own use. The Lake County grand jury added 11 more to the case. Ross was expected to be arraigned Tuesday.

Tutor arrested for sexual assault

VERNON HILLS—As a result of an investigation by the Vernon Hills Police Department, the police arrested William Warner March 10 for criminal sexual assault and multiple counts of aggravated criminal sexual abuse. Warner, 51, of 725 Garfield in Libertyville, is the owner of Hawthorn Tutorial Center in Vernon Hills. According to a police report, it is alleged that Warner, in acting in his capacity as a tutor, committed acts of sexual abuse and sexual assault upon a female juvenile student.

LAKE VILLA TOWNSHIP—Village of Lake Villa officials are upset with the actions of Highway Commissioner Jim Semmerling who cut down about eight trees on a township road across from a village road. Village officials are incensed the action was taken when they weren't notified and people living in both subdivisions are opposed to the roads coming together. The two feet diving line has a berm and signs warning motorists. Semmerling said he is doing his part to extend the road and make the area safer because of all the traffic and school buses in one area. He said it's up to the village to do what is best for public safety.

Teacher receives state award

WAUCONDA—Tim Rennels, a Wauconda High School teacher, was one of 50 recipients recognized by the Illinois State Board of Education, Department of Adult Vocational Technical Education, for developing the school's production technology course. Rennels is the department coordinator for industrial technology, and received the Connections 2000 Award at the fourth annual Connections Conference held in St. Charles. "It is kind of nice to be recognized by the state," Rennels said. The program he developed allows freshman to use computers, video-tapes and other hands-on tools to learn technical skills they can apply in future jobs.

Village sticker fee to increase

LAKE ZURICH—Village residents will most likely have to fork over at least double the amount they have paid for vehicle stickers for the past 16 years. The trustees are likely to approve an increase of $40 for the stickers, a boost from the $10 fee, although a 50 percent discount will be available for those who pay before the June 30 deadline. This will make the village's fee one of the highest in the immediate area, with Kildeer residents paying $15 and Wauconda residents $8.50. The fees will help pay for the shortfall in the street maintenance program, with a more comprehensive solution yet to be found. One solution would be going for a home rule referendum, which would allow the village to increase the sales tax by . 5 percent, increasing their take from approximately $3 million by additional million dollars.

Private wells may be capped

LAKE ZURICH—Village trustees are giving private wells another look after two of the village's biggest retailers and developers voiced concerns against capping or taxing the ones they own. The two wells are used strictly for landscape watering purposes, as was the one proposed by Lake Zurich Theater owner Tom Rhyan. Village officials contend they spent a lot of money on water and sewer improvements and are in the business of selling water. As the village has the ability to sell water, it can either cap or tax the wells. Village Administrator John F. Dixon said they could either charge the regular pumping fee for the wells; charge a yearly fee or cap the wells and make them tap-onto the village water main if they are approximately 300 feet away. Both Rhyan and John A. Sfire, owner of a well at the Village Square shopping center at Routes 12 and 22, said the village could not supply the necessary pressure to push water to the ends of their properties. The issue will be further reviewed at the April 11 committee-of-the-whole meeting.

Do you know what "probate" is? It is the court process by which debts are paid and assets are distributed to heirs.

What can you do now so that your loved ones can avoid the costly and frustrating probate process? You can attend a FREE ESTATE PLANNING SEMINAR and learn how a living trust can work for your family. A living trust can be defined in simple terms as a will substitute, one that allows your heirs to avoid meeting a probate judge. As the trustee (financial manager) of your trust, you can continue to do the same things you did before the trust existed, such as buy, sell, or give away the trusts' assets. You set up your living trust according to your desires. You are in complete control.

When you consider the cost of a will and the fees involved in probate, as compared to setting up a living trust, the trust is a much more reasonable choice. It saves not only money, but time. Your heirs will not have to wait six, nine, or twelve months to receive what you have left them.

In Illinois, probate is required when the assets total over $50,000. The probate process can be quite costly, reducing the amount of assets that heirs receive. Attorney's fees, court costs and executor's fees can reduce assets that go to the heirs by as much as 10%. There is also a time delay, because the minimum amount of time that an estate would be tied up in probate court in Illinois is six months, but normally probate takes nine to twelve months, and sometimes longer.

Firefighters work to prevent fire setting

TINA L. SWIECH

Staff Reporter

"Big fires start small." This was the theme of the workshop given by the Illinois Advisory Committee on Arson Prevention held at the Fox Lake Volunteer Fire Department station number Firefighters and rescue personnel from several counties around the area gathered for the two day, 13-hour certified program to hear a number of guest speakers where authorities learned to nip-it-in-the bud when it comes to juvenile fire prevention.

Mary Eagan of the Fox Lake Fire and Rescue Department did much of the coordinating along with Bill Hoover of the Wauconda Fire Department who was the lead instructor.

Thirty-three participants including those from Lake County, McHenry County, and Cook County attending the program. Among these were fire and rescue personnel from Lake Forest, Huntley, Mundelein, Morton Grove, Gurnee, Fox Lake, Downers Grove, Cary, Grayslake, Highland Park, Round Lake, Wauconda, Lake Zurich, and North Main & Waukegan Fire and Police Departments.

During the first day of the program, Susan Blechschmidt, M.A. clinical associate for the Center for Counseling and Psychotherapy captivated the audiences attention telling her experiences with children.

Another speaker, McHenry County Assistant States Attorney, Denise Kuzniewski was superb in explaining the side of the law when it comes to juvenile fire starters.

Iuvenile Detective Richard Bilisko from the Lake County Sheriff's Department was yet another informative speaker.

Participants thought the session was an excellent way to combine the fire, police, and law sides all working together for a common cause.

Some of the goals the seminar offered were to show how to decide whether there is a juvenile firesetting problem in the community; to show how to set up a structured community program for youngsters who start fires; and to teach fire service personnel to recognize problems that may lead some youngsters to continue starting fires.

Fox Lake Assistant Fire Chief Mike McNally praised Eagan for her coordination efforts. "She did a very good job," said McNally.

Eagan said getting a class together came about after she participated in a similar seminar hosted by Buffalo Grove two years ago.

Hoover had some people interested in taking another class, and so did Eagan, so they got together and coordinated the one in Fox Lake.

"We had rave reviews. Everyone was very happy with it," McNally said. Since it was so well received, the arson prevention committee asked the Fox Lake Department to be host to yet another session. McNally said one would be scheduled soon.

emotional event for us. It is both an honor and a pleasure to represent the remaining seven, as well as those who have left us, with sincere pride and sincere humility.

"It was 50 years ago that we were given the unprecedented opportunity to serve the Navy and our country," Cooper recalled. "We suspect we were chosen because we were in the right place at the right time. For us to fail in our obligation would have set blacks back in the U.S. Navy a number of years. We had no choice."

Other distinguished speakers at the March 9 event included Adm. Henry H. Mauz, Jr., Commander in Chief U.S. Atlantic Fleet: Yvonne M. Harrison, Deputy Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Force Support and Families; and Paul Stillwell, director of the History Division, U.S. Naval Institute, and author of The Golden 13: Recollections of the First Black Naval Officers.

Stillwell, a retired commander in the Naval Reserve who served on active duty during the Vietnam War, began his research with interviews for an oral history of the first black naval officers. A book evolved over the course of a six-year period.

Also in the audience was Sidney Poitier, who had read the history of the 13 officers and found it to be a fascinating account. The actor/director has shown interest in making a film about the group.

In addition to Cooper, the surviving seven include Jesse W. Arbor, Samuel E. Barnes, Graham E. Martin, John W. Reagan, Frank E. Sublett Jr., and William S. White. Arbor, Sublett and White are residents of the Chicago area.

Deceased members are, Phillip G. Barnes, Dalton L. Baugh, Sr., Reginald E. Goodwin, James E. Hair, Charles B. Lear. and Dennis D. Nelson II. Baugh's widow, Lorraine, was present at the ceremony.

The Golden 13 survivors have been meeting each year since 1976. The next reunion will be held in San Diego in July. The veterans continue to promote the Navy as a career for young people.

"We keep up with what's going on in the Navy," Cooper observed. "We suggest to young people in today's Navy that they can be anything they want to be. It just takes guts and hard work."

Sublett, a machinist's mate before receiving his commission, observed that a career in the Navy offers "tremendous education and experience that stay with you forever. Everything is possible now," he noted. "There are no exclusions."

"We're active in recruiting. We put the word out about the Navy," explained Reagan, who served from 1942 to 1946 and again in the Korean War.

In June of 1987, the surviving Golden 13 - then eight in number - and one widow, were present at the dedication of the Golden 13 Recruit Inprocessing Facility at Great Lakes. Today, the building serves as the base's central point for induction of recruits, and will serve as the central in-processing point for all Navy recruits when Great Lakes becomes the only Naval Training Center.

they should notify the Sheriff's Department.

Answering machines, however, could pose a problem. An answering machine would answer the call and then hang up, suggesting that the party was home and safe.

"We would assume everything is okay," Smith said. Although he doesn't discourage answering machines, Smith said they "are not a good thing to have as a part of this system."

Also, if an accident occurs after the computer call is made,

"The system does not replace 911," Smith said. "If something happens after the call and there's an emergency, they need to call

Local municipalities are in the process of advertising the new system as well as identifying people in the community who would benefit from the system.

Currently, there are eight other local police and sheriff's departments in the state that have a similar system.

Lake County's system was donated by Dan Bitton of DB Aviation in Waukegan, so there is no charge to become a subscriber, Smith said.

Since the program was implemented, Smith said, the Sheriff's Department has received a couple of false alerts-people forgetting to notify the sheriff when they are not home.

Regardless of false alerts, Smith said the Sheriff's Department will take the appropriate action—just in case.

"We want to get there before an emergency," he said.

IDOT is projecting to spend $60.6 million on its Lake County projects alone. LCDOT has estimated it will spend around $12 million for the year, less than its average of $15 million, said Dusty Powell, LCDOT director of planning and programs.

Powell said he does not foresee too many problems, as they have no major projects scheduled.

Currently, the division is completing three major projects, including Aptakisic Road in Long Grove, Cedar Lake Road in Round Lake Beach and Washington Street in Waukegan.

At least two maps were sent to each village and agency surveyed, with as many as 100 to those who requested them, Pilewski. Other interested parties - wanting to receive a copy of the map can contact CATS at its Chicago office.

Tips for traveling with kids

Now that you're a proud parent, look back on the vacations your parents took you on as a child. Do you remember long drives and rainy days being the worst part of the vacation?

Idle times are boring for kids. Keep the kids busy with games.

\ Play games that are simple yet creative, using observation and memory. Paper and pencil are the only pieces you need. The key is to gear games to the age level of the children.

Games to play on the road Write down all the foods you see advertised on billboards and then make a "menu" for dinner. Look for objects that begin with the letter "a" for a few minutes; then look for "b" words, and so on.

 Who can be the first to come up with a word using the letters on a car license plate in order? Look for cars from other states.

Games for the end of the day

Ask questions about the places

 If you could build your own zoo, what animals would you like to include and why? What are the animals you saw today?

 Recall what you've seen with an alphabet game (Start with, "I saw an a--." Each person repeats what's already been sald and adds another word as you go through the alphabet). Games for a rainy day

 Before you reach your destination, everyone writes the same word or short phrase to tell where you're going. Who can make the most words using the letters in the word or phrase?

 Scramble the names of places or things you plan to see on a piece of paper so that everyone has to unscramble the words (example, dinute tinosan = United Nations, glasf = flags).

Alligator owners worried about long haul back

TINA L. SWIECH

Staff Reporter

Alice the alligator was happy in her Pistakee Lake home. Then she was sent away to a petting zoo in Texas.

When McHenry Fire and Rescue paramedics attended to Pearl Pederson, because of some complications from a previous stroke, they said they would never go back again. At least not until their 42-year-old pet alligator wasn't around.

"What would you do if a 6foot alligator was hissing at you?" asked Deputy Chief Phil Gust. "He wasn't in a cage. They assured us he wouldn't do any harm, but that's easier said than done."

Gust said he wasn't going to allow his crew to work like that, so the State Conservation Department was contacted, and Agriculture then the Department's division of animal welfare.

Alice was taken out by court order from the Pederson's house, and was soon on her way to a petting zoo down south.

"We took the action we had to take," said Gust who doesn't see Alice fit for a house pet.

"I think that's just terrible that somebody can come in your house and say you've got to give it up," said Pearl who bought Alice at a pet shop in Chicago when she was only 10 inches long.

"It would have been different if we illegally trapped it, but we didn't break any laws when we got it," Pearl added.

Apparently some animal activists got wind of what happened, and soon Gov. Jim Edgar did too. "Gov. Edgar said we could get her back," said Mel Pederson.

The Pederson's said they received a call and a letter from the governor's office, but Mel said he's afraid the long haul back would only put undue stress on

"We would love to have her back, but of course it's too hard on her." Mel said of the traumatic 2,000 mile ride.

So now, Alice will more than likely spend the rest of her days sunning herself in a park with other alligators, but the Pederson's will never forget the many years of good times they had together with the reptile.

Pearl said she remembers when Alice would climb up on the furniture for a comfortable seat. Little gates finally had to be set up so they wouldn't find their friend in bed with them at night like they sometimes did.

The family cat even took a liking to Alice. Pearl verified the story of how the giant creature would sit with it's mouth wide open for minutes on end, and the cat would quickly crawl in and grab some food, before getting out. (Alice loved to eat dog food)

"The (neighbor) kids, the grandkids, all the kids used to come over and see Alice," reminiced Mel.

The Pedersons said they never thought of Alice any other way than part of the family. "She was just always here," said Pearl.

Woman's world engulfs politics

After Tuesday's primary, the political arena here and elsewhere is a woman's world more than ever.

Illinois Comptroller Dawn Clark Netch's victory in the Democratic gubernatorial primary sets the stage for a free-swinging debate with Gov. Jim Edgar on an increase in the state income tax besides opening up the historymaking possibility of the election in November of the state's first female governor.

On the local level, a growing woman's movement in county politics was evidenced by significant wins by four women campaigning for Republican County Board nominations. Diana O'Kelly, a newcomer, soundly trounced incumbent Mundelein-Fremont Township Rep. Colin McRae, the president of the Forest Preserve Dist. and an ally of powerful Chairman Robert Depke. Judy Martini faced veteran Antioch politician Jim Fields for the third consecutive time, winning the GOP nomination in a tough battle. Fields also is a Depke confidant.

Two incumbent County Board members, Carol Calabresa of Libertyville, and Pam Newton of Vernon Hills, won renomination. The only member of the woman's movement to lose was Mildred Corder, who was edged out by the wily pro Bob Neal in Newport Township who deftly changed sides on a controversial road issue to gain an edge.

The significance of the success of the Republican women in County Board balloting, which is tatamount to victory in November, is that by joining with other women on the board they will have sufficient force to determine the new County Board chairman in November. Tuesday's results will not make Chairman Depke feel comfortable about retaining his seat of power.

Picking drop sites to be ticklish job

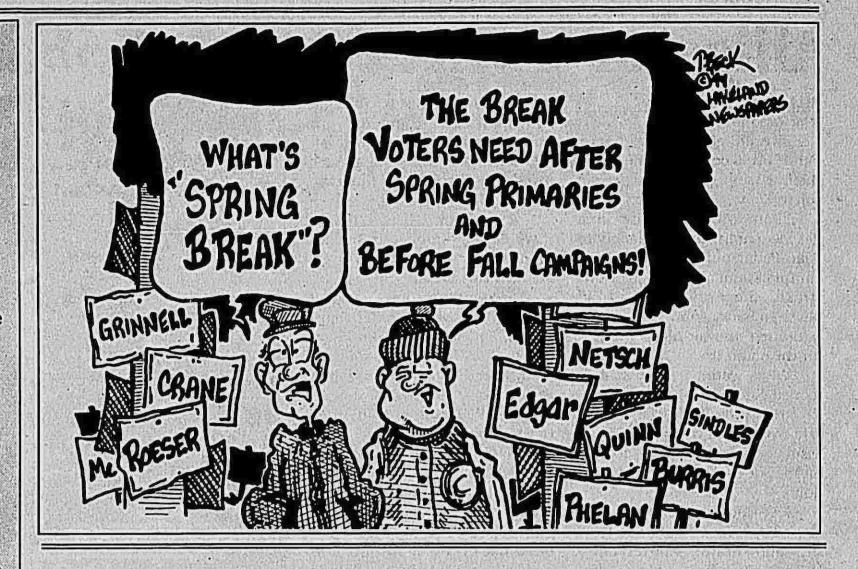

By electing to establish two permanent drop-off locations for hazardous household wastes, the Solid Waste Agency of Lake County (SWALCO) is putting a "toe in the water" for the future difficult and politically explosive job of selecting permanent landfill sites.

SWALCO Executive Dir. Andrew Quigley feels that drop-off points near Waukegan and Lake Zurich would be ideal for complying with requirements to collect materials like solvents, household cleaners, old paint, oil, auto coolant and other materials that are toxic or flammable.

At the drop offs, dangerous materials would be stored temporarily in specially lined and ventilated trailers until professional haulers can remove the goods for permanent disposal that complies with environmental requirements.

The way stations for hazardous materials make it unnecessary to dispose dangerous products in landfills. If SWALCO can site the drop offs successfully, Lake County will be the first to establish a countywide collection facility.

From the start, SWALCO officials have recognized that selecting landfill sites will be its most difficult task in dealing with the overall problem of disposing of solid wastes. Picking spots for the drop offs in the northeast and southwest corners of the county may be no less difficult, but the job should prove to be a worthwhile experience.

Society losing out 'being nice' to jailbirds

BILL SCHROEDER

Leave it to a plain talking, straight-shooting Texas editor to launch a campaign to strip convicted criminals of privileges because that vague nemisis, "somebody," says they have a constitutional right.

I'm ready to join the campaign. Rowland Nethaway, senior editor of the Waco Tribune-Herald, wrote that more and more lawabiding citizens have had it up to here with a criminal justice system that frequently seems to do more for criminals than it does for justice.

"What this country needs," Hethaway wrote in a recent column, "is a constitutional amendment to take away a fistful of constitutional protections awarded to America's convicts.

"The amendment would say that convicted felons do not have a constitutional right to lounge around in prison watching color television, lifting weights, shooting hoops and getting free room and board in conditions better than those endured by the nation's homeless, working poor and even America's soldiers and sailors."

Nethaway is wondering why people convicted of tearing down our society are required to receive better treatment than America's fighting forces? So do

Maybe Waco has a neat spot for miscreants like Lake County's Babcox Justice Center in Waukegan where the inmates enjoy color tv, a library, a barbershop, medical center, and a better place to eat and sleep than the county's homeless and Nethaway's theory is that if the Constitution calls for being nice to criminals, it's time to amend the Constitution. Pass the petition. I'll sign.

Who pays?

Editor:

We just learned about a new ordinance passed by the village trustees of Wauconda called the "Graffiti Ordinance." We believe it to be a much needed ordinance, does not go far enough, our question is who will pay? Must the homeowner pay for someone else's crime? The fine as dictated by the ordinance is $10 to $500 per day. While the homeowner is in litigation against the criminal the fine is piling up. This includes a lien against the property and a possible taking away of the property of the victim if they are on a fixed income and cannot pay a fine of such an amount.

Prevent 'hop scotch'

Apparently, seven of the 11 members of the Lake County Regional Planning Commission don't think the zoning ordinances, as comprehensively amended and adopted by the Lake County Board on December 2, 1988, aren't worth the paper they are printed on!

The Lake County map indicates that the Grainger property in Mettawa is zoned as "Rural Estated District." As described on page 2-4 of the ordinances, section 2302, "The Rural Estate District is intended to permanently protect the integrity of large geographic areas which have predominantly and historically been developed for low density, large lot, single family residential use. In order to provide maximum protection to the existing residential property values...new development must be fully compatible and conform with the existing large lot, single family character of these areas."

It goes on to say, "This District is not expected to be subject to rezoning to higher intensities in the future. It is intended to be built as zoned."

It was that way under local Mettawa control and is that way under Lake County control. While the greedy side of me says it would be great to get Grainger's tax dollars for the schools in District 103 and 125, where I reside, the side of me with integrity says I can't be bought off with these tax dollars and some forest preserve land.

The Zoning Board of Appeals and the Lake County Board should stick to the plan and heed the wishes of the surrounding communities, with the exception of Vernon Hills. Deny the zoning change and immediately prevent Vernon Hills from hopscotching the forest preserve by allowing Mettawa to annex that forest preserve west of Grainger, with written assurances that Mettawa will never change the zoning from five acres residential should they regain control in the future of that property.

You have the power to do so, how about exercising it. Vote NO! Or tear up the Land Zoning Ordinances and admit the seven members are correct in that they aren't worth the paper they are printed on. Grainger officials indicated they could make about $10,000,000 profit on the property if they sell it. I suggest they take the money and run! Sorry neighbor!

Steven T. Klein Vernon Hills

LETTERS TO THE Editor

Land decision bigger than Grainger Editor:

My concern relates to Grainger's efforts to re-zone the properties they purchased—zoned residential and still zoned residential.

Grainger's professionally prepared plan document speaks to the serious potential of a "domino effect" that would be triggered by granting a change from residential to commercial. However, there is no reference made to properties north of Rte. 60 nor various acreages along Riverwoods and Everett Roads. Such property is as subject to the domino effect as is the land Grainger refers to-west along Rtc. 60.

Over the past years the press has come to depict all of this as Grainger vs. Mettawa. Such is not the case. You should realize that this is a multi-community concern stretching well beyond Mettawa bound-

It would be a serious and damaging error to change this zoning especially on the basis of a political tradeoff.

John A. Stevenson, Sr. Lake Forest

Disillusioning literature

Editor:

The world of politics grows increasingly annoying to me. What's with some of these candidates? It's enough to transport one tired, middle-aged suburbanite back to campus radical days, remembering why we cheered on the SDS.

My most recent moment of political disillusionment came in the door with Peter Fitzgerald's campaign flyer. Does Mr. Fitzgerald realize how a mailing this colorful, glossy, oversized, and expensive-looking, featuring a picture of his baby, comes off to the average taxpayer? As a little out of touch.

I'm glad he's committed to his baby. But as a voter, there are other things more relevant to me. What about his loyalty to his constituents? As a state senator, he has voted to raise taxes twice and now he's bailing out before his term is finished.

Stop competition between schools

I feel the issue of Avon School versus Woodview-Lakeview Schools in Grayslake School District 46 needs to be addressed.

For too long there has been some stigma attached to Avon School that I believe is totally unfounded. As a resident of Grayslake, I have had at least one child in each of the other three schools in the district. I worked as secretary at Avon school for the past three years. The faculty and staff at Avon are enthusiastic and dedicated professionals. I truly enjoyed all my contact with the children there; they are as bright, intelligent and fun-loving as any other children anywhere. The parental involvement and support at Avon impressed me from the start. There was never a lack of parent volunteers when they were needed (and even when they weren't!) I believe the parents of Avon students to be as caring and concerned for their children as the parents of Woodview and Lakeview students. I have to honestly say that it truly galls me when I hear some of the things that are said about Avon School. It is one of four schools in the district- under the same administration with the same curriculum. The only differences I can see between the schools is that there are no "walkers" at Avon and, since the kitchen is at Avon, the hot lunches are always hotter at Avon.

Positive adaptability to change (whether good or bad) is a necessary skill for life in the real world—and one that children learn from their

ELLIOTT TARSON

It has become increasingly clear as the Graingerzoning saga plows onward, that the Lake County Board members may feel increasingly pressured. On the one side, as County Board members they are under obligation to the voters to make proper land use decisions. On the other side, as Forest Preserve Commissioners they are asked to consider the large grant of lands, proposed by Grainger and contingent upon giving Grainger the re-zoning they have requested.

It is also clear that the attitude of the people who live in Lake Forest, Mettawa, and Lincolnshire, the LML Agreement area, remains steadfastly opposed to the Grainger re-zoning, and that the 23,000 plus voters who live in this area would feel betrayed by a County Board which voted to compromise the way of life in these communities by presiding over the dissection of the Lake County Comprehensive Plan in exchange for a "free bee" for the Forest Preserve District.

The County Board has a responsibility to protect the way of life we have come to cherish in Lake County. It has a responsibility to protect the Comprehensive Plan and the Lake County Zoning Ordinance which enforces that plan. The criteria for amending that plan place the burden on the applicant, and in our opinion, are not met by the Grainger petition: those criteria specifically place the public interest over that of the applicant! The long term effects on the Comprehensive Plan and on the Lake County Zoning Ordinance of the granting of this petition would be devastatingly destructive. Excessive office development and traffic will result in an area already surrounded by high density development. No community would be safe if this precedent were set. People would be unable to buy property in Lake County with any assurance that their life style, their investment in their homes, the character of their communities would be preserved.

The time has come for the Lake County Board to demonstrate the kind of creative thinking that would both protect local and county zoning ordinances and yet make it possible for Grainger to move to Lake County. Instead of considering a scuttling of the Comprehensive Plan, they should be looking for ways to encourage Grainger to find a suitable, non-controversial site (there are more than enough available) here in Lake County.

The time for rhetoric and posturing has passed. Now it the time for statemanship. Can this County Board and its leadership measure up to what its constituents have a right to expect? I sincerely hope so.

Get tax smart about employee travel expenses

If you had to dip into your own pocket to pay for Job-related travel costs, the Illinois CPA Society says you may qualify for a tax deduction on your 1993 tax return.

Unrelmbursed travel expenses are considered miscellaneous Itemized deductions and are deductible to the extent that your total miscellaneous expenses exceed two percent of your adjusted gross Iricome (AGI).

Out-of-town meetings

Generally, you can deduct transportation expenses, such as gasoline, tolls, parking fees or train or taxl fares, incurred to meet with customers and clients.

You may also deduct business travel, hotel and meal costs while away from home. You are not considered away from your home unless your duties require you to be away substantially longer than a regular working day and It is reasonable for you to need sleep or rest. On your 1993 tax return, you may deduct 80 percent of your meal expenses. On one-day business trips, you may not deduct the cost of your meals unless they qualify as business meals.

Traveling between two jobs

If you hold down two Jobs, you may take a tax deduction for the cost of traveling between them. However, if may deduct the costs of traveling from you return home in-between jobs, you may not take a tax deduction for the costs associated with traveling to your second lob.

Temporary work assignments

If you're given a temporary job asslanment away from home, you may deduct transportation, lodging and meal costs. Although the tax law does not provide a clear definition of "temporary," It does distinguish between "temporary" and "Indefinite" assignments. If you accept a lob for a long but indeterminate amount of time, it is generally considered "indefinite" and you do not qualify for a travel deduction. However, If you take an assignment for a specified period of time, it is generally considered "temporary." Be aware, too, that beginning with the 1993 tax year, if your job assignment at a single location is for a year or more, It's not considered temporary and you're not eligible for a tax deduction.

If you are employed or self-employed and take a course to maintain or Improve your job skills, you may qualify to take a tax deduction for the travel costs to attend the course. When you attend a course after work, you

Tax breaks offer some relief from cost of raising children

If you have children, you may be entitled to important tax deductions and credits on your 1993 tax return, says the Illinois CPA Society. Before filing your tax return, be sure you consider the following.

Dependency Exemption

Generally, you can claim your children as dependents on your tax return as long as you provided more than half of their total support. In addition, your children must be U.S. citizens and under age 19 or full-time students under age 24 at the close of 1993. However, you may claim exemptions for children over age 19 who are not full-time students, or for full-time students over age 24, if they have less than $2,350 of gross income for the year. Each dependent exemption is worth $2,350 on your 1993 tax return.

Be aware that children cannot claim a personal exemption on their own tax returns if either parent claims them as a dependent.

Child care credit

If you pald someone to care for your child so you and your spouse could work or look for work, you may be entitled to a valuable tax credit. For parents with adjusted gross income (AGI) of $10,000 or less, the credit is equal to 30 percent of employmentrelated dependent care expenses. The amount of the credit is decreased by one percent for each $2,000 (or part thereof) of adjusted gross income in excess of $10,000, until it decreases to 20 percent of taxpayers with AGIs of over $28,000.

The maximum amount of employment-related child care expenses that can be taken into account for the credit is $2,400 for one child, and $4,800 for two or more qualifying individuals. Employment related expenses may not exceed your earned income. If married, employment-related expenses are limited to the earned income of the spouse who earns less.

CPAs point out that you may claim a credit only for amounts you pay to care for "qualifying" individuals. Generally, these include children under age 13 for whom you are entitled to claim a dependent exemption on your tax return.

There are two other important rules to keep in mind: If you are married, you must usually file a joint return in order to claim the credit; and you must usually provide the name, address and taxpayer Identification or Social Security number of the organization or individual providing care for your child. Several ways to take advantage of early retirement funds

This is the second part of a three part series on how Joe America should handle his lump sum retirement savings play when he leaves his employer. Today, Joe America is 50 years old and decided to take advantage of his companies early retirement offer. He can either take a lump sum distribution of $250,000 or receive regular monthly payments for the rest of his life.

Listen carefully to his conversation with his financial planner. Not many people are aware of how Joe can get Income from his lump sum without paying the 10 percent penalty for taking money out before 59 1/2.

Financial Planner: "I know you want to start using the money right away, so those monthly payments probably look pretty attractive to you. The problem with getting a check from your company for the same amount every month for the rest of your life is that every month it buys a little bit less. The longer you live, the further behind you get. And even if the amounts are increased to keep up with inflation, there's still no opportunity to get ahead. I think your best bet would be to roll that money over into an IRA and put it to work for you."

Joe America: "But if I do that, don't I have to walt until I'm 591/2 before I can start making withdrawais?"

Financial Planner: "No, you can start taking money out of an IRA whenever you want and not pay a penalty. All you have to do is take it out in substantially equal payments based on your life expectancy or your joint life expectancy or your Joint life expectancy with your IRA beneficiary. In your case, Joe America, that's your wife. And you only have to stick with that schedule for five years or until you reach age 59 1/2, whichever comes later. After that you can take out as much as you like."

Joe America: "So if the life expectancy tables say I should live another 33 years, I can take 1/33rd of my lump-sum amount from my IRA every year?"

Financial Planner: "Right. Actually, there are several methods you can choose from. The simplest is to divide your account balance at the end of... every year by the number of years you're expected to live. Then if you want to be very conservative and maybe leave something to your heirs, you can recalculate your withdrawals each year based on your changing life expectancy. That's because the longer you live, the longer you're expected to percent a year, or 8 percent a year?"

Financial Planner: "Yes, that's another method you can use, but If you do that you have to take the same dollar amount each year-again, for five years or until you reach 591/2, whichever is later. And remember, we don't have a crystal ball so our guess as to what's reasonable is only a guess. For example, the stock market has returned an average of around 10 percent a year over the long haul. But that's an average. It's done better, and It's done worse. Whatever assumption you make should be a conservative one. You don't want to outlive your money. Why not base your withdrawals on the amounts that are actually in your account—at least until you're 59 1/2? If your IRA investments do well, your withdrawals will grow."

As you can see there are many options for Joe America. The trick is to make sure the rollover is handled properly to avoid taxes and penalties. Always consult with you financial advisor, as well as your tax advisor before making any decisions.-by ROCH TRANEL, Money Concepts, Libertyville

Debt forgiven but not forgotten

If your bank has forgiven a debt you were to repay, It probably won't be forgotten at year's end. Generally, financial entitles must report the cancelation of some debts of $600 or more to the IRS, If the debts are canceled after 1993.

Financial institutions and credit unions, as well as the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC), the Resolution Trust Corp. (RTC), the National Credit Union Admin. (NCUA), and otherfederal executive agencies must file Information returns for discharges of Indebtedness of $600 or more.

A canceled debt, or a debt pald for you by another person, is generally Income to you and you must report It on your income tax return. This includes a discount offered by a financial institution for the prepayment of a mortgage loan.

Tax breaks

From page B9 had children living at home for more than half of 1993 may qualify for the earned income credit. You may be entitled to a basic credit up to $1,434 if you have one qualifying child and $1,511 for two or more children if your earned income and your adjusted gross income are less than certain limits. Here's more good news: If the credit is larger than your tax, the difference is refunded to you.

You may also qualify for a 5percent supplemental young child credit if your child was under age one on December 31, 1993. In addition, a 6percent health insurance credit is available if you provide health insurance coverage for your qualifying children. Be aware that claiming the additional credit for a child under the age of one eliminates the infant as a qualifying Individual for purposes of the child care credit, meaning that you cannot take a deduction for child care expenses incurred for that child so you can work.

Medical expenses

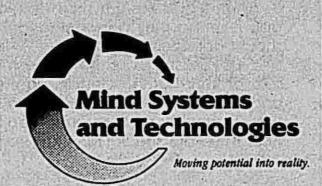

Finally, don't forget that your dependents' medical expenses can also be claimed as Itemized deductions. Since medical expenses are deductible to the extent that they exceed 7.5 percent of your adjusted gross income, accurately calculating your dependents' medical expenses, such as fees pald to physicians, costs for eyeglasses or braces, health insurance premiums, and travel to and from medical facilities, may help you to exceed that threshold and qualify for a tax deduction.

CPAs point out that understanding the tax law can help parents adopt a smarter and more cost-effective tax strategy.

Seniors may take advantage of special tax benefits

Many seniors can take advantage of special tax benefits offered only to them.

Generally, for 1993, single persons 65 or older do not have to file a federal Income tax return If their income is less than $6,950. The limit for a married couple filing a joint return is $11,600 If only one spouse is 65 or older, and $12,300 if both spouses are 65 or older. Persons are considered age 65 on the day before their 65th birthday; therefore those who turned 65 on January 1, 1994, are considered to be age 65 at the end of 1993.

Anyone who is 65 or older and does not itemize deductions can take advantage of a higher standard deduction than other taxpayers. For 1993, $900 is added to the regular standard deduction amount for qualifying unmarried individuals who are 65 or older, plus another $900 if he or she is blind. For those who are married filing jointly or separately and for qualifying widows or widowers, the standard deduction is increased by $700 If one spouse is 65 or older, $1,400 lf both are 65 or older, plus amounts if either is blind.

Older disabled Americans may be able to reduce the taxes they owe with a tax credit called the "credit for the elderly or the disabled." It is based on filling status, age and income. Generally, the credit is not available if the person's 1993 income level regulres him or her to report any part of social security benefits as taxable income. Individuals will 65 be eligible under for this credit only if they retire with total and permanent disability and have income from a public or private employer because of that disability.

Senior citizens who are thinking about selling their personal residence should consider the once-in-a-lifetime $125,000 exclusion of the gain on the sale of their home. Certain age, use and ownership restrictions apply to this one-time exclusion from gross income. Also, there are special rules for persons with disabilities and for widows or widowers.

Taxpayers needing assistance with their returns can turn to Tax Counseling for the Elderly (TCE). TCE is an IRS program through which volunteers from many organizations provide free tax Information and assistance to Individuals age 60 and older. Contact your local IRS office for locations near you.

Tax refunds can be applied to reduce debt

Behind on a federal debt? If you are expecting a tax refund, part or all of your refund could be applied to reduce that debt.

You may be contacted by the IRS If money is withheld from your tax refund to pay your past due child and/or spousal support payments, or other federal obligations such as student loans. The IRS can Identify the amount of the refund to be applied and the agencies that requested the refund offset. Contact the agencles involved in the offset to discuss discrepancies. The IRS cannot resolve them.

Spouses who do not have any federal debts or owe child and/or spousal support payments, and file a Joint income tax return with a spouse who does, can be considered an "injured spouse." An injured spouse can file Form 8379, "Injured Spouse Claim and Allocation," to receive his or her share of the refund that would otherwise be used to pay the other spouse's debt. Form 8379 can be filed with the loint federal income tax return. or separately if already filed.

To be considered an injured spouse, you must (1) file a Joint return, (2) have received income such as wages; Interest, etc., (3) have made tax payments such as federal Income tax withheld from wages or estimated tax payments, (4) report the Income and tax payments on the Joint return, and (5) have an overpayment, all or part of which could be applied against the past-due amount. Refunds that involve community property states, in which all community property is subject to the debts of either spouse, must be divided according to state law. The entire joint refund is subject to offset, and an injured spouse claim cannot be accepted by the IRS.

*Those who may qualify as an injured spouse can call the IRS at 1-(800)829-3676 to get Form 8379.

SPENCER SCHEIN Staff Reporter

Supermodel Kathy Ireland's appearance at the Super Kmart in Vernon Hills made it worth any reprimands the many high school boys would receive for ditching

Many of the hundreds of people who waited in line and crowded around the table where Ireland was to sign autographs March 10th were males, mostly under 20-years-old and many sporting Libertyville High School lettermen jackets.

"We wanted to see Kathy Ireland," said Kevin Noe, a sophomore at LHS from Vernon Hills, who was fifth in line with fellow classmate Chris Smith. "She's hot!"

Currently on a nationwide tour to promote her new line of swimwear, Ireland said she was glad she got to spend a few days in Chicago, one of her favorite Ireland signed copies of the current Sports Illustrated swimsuit edition, as well as other pictures of her in magazines, calendars and even cardboard cutouts stolen from taverns.

Ireland has appeared in the last 10 editions of Sports Illustrated's swimsuit edition and has been modeling swimsuits for many years, so producing her own swimwear line "is something I have always been interested in doing," she said.

"As I have been modeling them for so many years, I know what I want and don't want," she said. The suits are versatile, very flattering, supportive and, most important to her line of work, photograph well.

Impending motherhood has not put a damper on Ireland's activities, but will offer many changes and challenges in the years to come, she said.

Ireland, 30, is married to an emergency room surgeon in Santa Barbara, Calif., and is seven-months pregnant. This will be her first child.

McMulty Dancers to kick up their heels in Dublin

Barbara McNulty will be taking eight of her best Irish Dancers to Dublin next month to strut their stuff at the All-World Championships of Irish Step Dancing, April 3 through 10. A tradition in Lake County for more than 20 years, the McNulty Irish Dancers will perform two group dances, and one particularly talented student will dance in solo competition.

Kelly Horton of Mundelein has qualified for the international competition seven times, said studio owner Barbara McNulty, but it wasn't always feasible for her to go.

"It's not something I encourage because it's during school," said McNulty. "If that's not the direction they want to take, it's enough for them to be in regional competition."

This year, though, McNulty feels that since most of the girls have been students for 10 or 12 years, "it's a nice culmination for all the years they've danced."

Kelly began dancing at age 4 and did compete in Dublin when she was 9. She remembers being thoroughly intimidated by the number of dancers at that event. Now, at 16, she and McNulty both feel it's time for her to go back.

"She'd like to give it one last try," said McNulty. The eight girls placed fifth at the regional competition held in Cleveland, Ohio, over Thanksgiving weekend. They have been selling candy to raise money to pay their way to Dublin, said McNulty. The talented group includes Julie Lynch and Alicia Rosenthal, both from Libertyville, Kathleen Brown of Round Lake, Laura Andrzejewski of Island Lake, Nicole Smith of Arlington Heights, Katie Olson of Lake Forest and Lemieux Bridget Elmhurst. The students spend at least two hours a week in lessons, and many more practicing on their own. McNulty uses space at Dancenter North and has additional studios in Mundelein and Ingleside.

The group dance competition will include two dances. "Ceili," a traditional dance that has been passed down through the years, is compulsory in the world competition. It is included to ensure that the art will not be lost. The second number is a figure dance choreographed to a story that must have an Irish theme.

"It's very competitive," said McNulty.

In the solo competition, Horton will submit two soft shoe dances, much like ballet, and two hard shoe dances. Seven judges from all over the > perform. If she is selected to continue, the process is repeated with different dances. The scores are tallied and between one-fourth and one-half of the dancers are brought back for final competition. The individual competition may include up to 200 dancers, said McNulty, and takes about six to eight hours.

Horton is looking forward to going back to Ireland and says she feels more comfortable this "Last year I didn't compete (in the district)," she said. "When I came back this year I didn't think I did as well as I did. It surprised me and everyone else."

Dancers perform steps according to their ability, said Horton. McNulty forms the dances around the techniques the girls can do well so each girl is the best she can be.

When the decision was made for the group to go to Ireland, McNulty encouraged Horton to compete as a solo. The girls had never danced as a group in international competition.

"We're all best friends," Horton said of the group. "We get to see each other a lot. We've been together four or five years; we practice together a couple times a month."

"There's a lot of practicing," she admitted. "but it's a lot of fun."

"I want to keep it fun, on the lighter side," said McNulty. "But I expect them to strive for the best."

Many of the girls have roots in Ireland. Anne Andrzejewski, mother of Laura, was born in Waterford, and the family has visited there numerous times. The 17-year-old Wauconda High School senior will have a host of Irish relatives cheering her Julie Lynch traveled to her father's native land when she was very young and remembers little.

"It's really great that we get to go," said the 16year-old junior from Libertyville High School. "I haven't been there since I was little."

The daughter or Tom and Sharon Lynch of Libertyville loves traveling with the Irish Dancers and has been involved for about eight years.

"We go all over and it's fun meeting a lot of people," she said.

The most difficult trick to being a dancer, she confessed, is learning and remembering the steps to the traditional dance, particularly the hand move-

Writing workshop

The children's writing workshops at Gorton Community Center by author/publisher James H. Lehman have been so well received that Lehmann has decided to offer it again. The workshop drew the praise of both children and parents.

The Children's Saturday Writing Workshop," a repeat presentation of this half-day session on writing stories and using the imagination (for children in grades 3 -5) will be offered from 9:30 a.m. to noon on March 19. The event is $20 per child.

Lehman's workshop style is highly interactive. He teaches by eliciting the thoughts and ideas of the children. He asks kids many questions and encourages them to ask back. He helps children make their characters come alive, create vivid descriptions, brainstorm plot ideas, get unstuck when ideas won't come and create and use plot devices and see the connections between their stories and their own experi-

An old west fantasy come true

So you saw the movie "City Slickers" and you want to play cowboy.

No dude ranches for you. You want the real stuff!
We're talking week long trips into the mountains starting out from towns with names like "Apache Junction." You long for the scent of leather and wild sage, the creak of real wagon wheels. This childhood dream can come true!

There are several outfitters specializing in the real American wilderness experience for the mild to the extreme.

Starting with the mild, one suitable for kids to grandparents is a six day, 35 mile wagon train trek down the Old Bozeman Trail. Sitting high atop a real fully restored wagon, you will explore the trail originally laid out in 1860 by mountain man Jim Bridger and dine on buffalo steaks and other western vittles just like the early settlers and Want something a little more rugged? Forget the wagons and pack up your horse for a mountain adventure. This time we're going to follow the footsteps of Lewis and Clark as we explore the high country of Montana. During your eight days on horseback you'll fish in crystal clear alpine lakes and mountain streams.

By the way, we're talking adventure here, not necessarily roughing it. A fully equipped chuck wagon assures a real western feast awaits you at day's end.

Looking for something really different? How about Ilama trekking? The llama carries your pack while you enjoy some real back country hiking off established trails through the vast Pecos wildemess. If you're an experienced hiker looking for some real adventure, this may Whatever your fantasy of the old west may be, and whether you want to live it for two days or two weeks, it can be fulfilled.

Good Food Put adventure in Lenten meal

Tired of the same old Lenten fare of fish sticks or tuna casserole? How about a Wisconsin Limburger Vegetable Pizza recipe complements of the Dairy Council of Wisconsin.

Limburger cheese is a surface ripened cheese with a hearty, pungent flavor brought to Wisconsin's dairyland by German immigrants. Currently, there is only one place in the United States that is still faithfully producing Limburger cheese according to Old World custom, a small cooperative in Monroe, Wisc.

Feeling adventurous? Try this recipe.

1 7-ounce package Wisconsin Limburger cheese

1 12-inch prepared bread shell or frozen pizza crust

I cup finely sliced new potatoes

1/4 cup chopped red onion ...

6 stalks asparagus, sliced in half, lengthwise

1 garlic clove, minced

I tablespoon fresh thyme or I teaspoon dried thyme

1/4 teaspoon salt;
2 tablespoons olive oil

red pepper flakes, to taste

Cut away 1/4-inch rind from all sides of cheese, discard rind. Shred remaining cheese. Sprinkle bread shell or pizza crust with 3/4 cup shredded cheese, set aside.

Combine potatoes, onions, asparagus, garlic, thyme, and salt. Sprinkle olive oil over mixture and toss lightly. Spread the vegetables evenly over pizza. Sprinkle remaining 3/4 cup shredded cheese over vegetables. Place pizza on baking sheet and bake at 425 degrees for 18 to 20 minutes. Makes 8 servings.—by CLAUDI A M. LENART

"I'm getting more and more excited as it is starting to become a reality," she said. Having loved being around children and currently teaching Sunday School to 4 and 5-year-olds, Ireland said she has always been looking forward to having her own children.

Surprisingly, her modeling career has not been interrupted too much, as she has pretty much stayed on the road, first promoting the '94 swimsuit edition, sharing the cover with Elle Macpherson and Rachel Hunter, and now the new designer line, moderately priced at $24.99.

The line will be available at K Mart stores in mid-April, and will be available in missy sizes from 5/6 to 13/14.

She said she is looking for-ward to the new experience of bringing "junior" on the road along with her.

Speaking of her modeling career of the past 13 years: "It's been fun and kind of an adventure." she said. For the past several years she has started to focus more attention on her acting career, which is staring to take hold.

"I'm getting more and more involved in the decision process of it," she said. Past films include "Necessary Roughness" and "National Lampoon's Loaded Weapon 1."

On her voice, which critics have sometimes commented as being too high, she said: "It's something you can use when you need it and disregard when you don't." The director of her first film, "Alien from LA.," wanted her to keep her voice high, but in one-on-one conversations, she sounds normal.

Andy Havely, 31, of Libertyville, had been camped out in line since 10:40 a.m., awaiting her 1 p.m. appearance, and had her autograph his copy of the magazine.

After finally getting to meet her, he said "she's really nice."

She is.

Spring is in the air, and it is time again for RJ's Eatery's famous Easter Buffet. This delightful buffet will be served from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Easter Sunday, April 3. The buffet table will have carved beef, ham, chicken, assorted breakfast items, fresh fruit, a sweets table, plus so much more! At $9.95 for adults, $5.95 for children under 10 and seniors, this is one of the best deals of the season. And, for an extra treat, RI's is expecting a visit from the Easter Bunny, himself.

RJ's Eatery, at 1913 E. Grand Ave, in Lindenhurst, offers daily all-you-can-meals. On Sunday, enjoy either the roast pork or turkey. Included with dinner is your choice of soup or salad bar with all the fresh fruits and vegetables.

All-you-can-eat pizza night is Tuesday. Enjoy the famous RI's thin crust cheese and sausage pizza for only $3.95. For only $1.95 more, munch on the fresh salad bar.

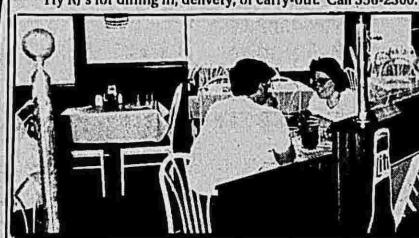

Monday's fare includes mouth-watering broasted chicken. Enjoy a spaghetti feast on Wednesday for only $4.95. It's barbecued beef ribs on Thursday, and the Friday fish fry for $6.95 completes the week. Saturdays are really special with as many Alaskan snow crab legs you can eat for $15.95.

If lunch is what you are after, RJ's is the place to remember. Lunchtime treats during the week include two daily specials from $3.95, which includes a cup of soup.

Located on beautiful Sand Lake, the restaurant offers a fantastic view along with their excellent service. RJ's also features the Outback Bar, a great place to meet friends or watch sporting events.

Try RJ's for dining in, delivery, or carry-out. Call 356-2300.

John's Garage, the place to fix your appetite

John's Garage is the place to fix your appetite. From Pizza's to steaks, lasagna to long dogs, John's has everything to delight Located in Hawthorne Mall in Vernon Hills, John's is open seven days a week starting at 11 a.m. until 10:30 p.m. on Fridays and Saturday, 8 p.m. on Sundays. The bar is open until

Bob Lampros, owner and manager has a couple of favorites from the menu. "The burgers are great, " said Lampros. "But the rotisserie chicken is great too."

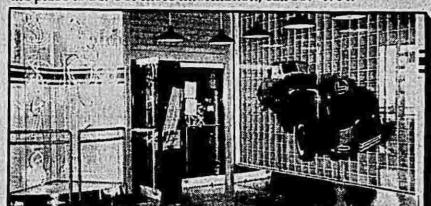

Start off your meal with John's "Spare Parts." Baskets of fries with cheese or without, nachos, potato skins, and chicken bites are just a few of the many appetizers on the menu.

John's has a huge salad bar with over 60 items to chose from. And, if soup is your choice, try the French onion, baked in its own crock, topped with bubbling cheese and served with garlic bread. The Garage also features soup of the day and even soup and the salad bar. Try the special chili, topped with diced onions and natural cheddar cheese.

John's has a huge selection of entrees. Baked lasagna, London broil, steak on a stick, French fried jumbo shrimp, ribs and skins, and so much more are available every day at John' Garage.

Pizza lovers are not overlooked at the Garage. Try the new thin crust pizza with any of the large number of toppings to choose from. Or, order an individual pizza with either sausage or pepperoni and the salad bar is only $1.95 extra.

John's Garage has fast and courteous service. Whether you stop by for lunch, dinner, or even just a snack, John's Garage is the place to be. For more information, call 367-4704.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)
You will be accomplishing much from behind-the-scenes this week.
You will be pleased with the results of a research project. Business interests proceed nicely. Loved ones will be feeling especially close to each other now.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's a busy week for you... You may be making plans now to visit friends at a distance. Partners are in agreement about mutual concerns. This weekend, you could be nursing a real or imagined hurt in private. Talk it over instead.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) This is an excellent week for career interests. New work opportunities present themselves now. It's the right time to sell yourself and your ideas to others. Work priorities may take precedence this weekend over social interests.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A partner has a fun and unusual suggestion to make now. Couples will be making plans for some time away together. You are at a disadvantage if you mix business and pleasure. Family life is rewarding this weekend.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Innovative ideas put you a step ahead in business now. You will also be making important changes at home. Meetings with financial advisers gowell. You should get more than one estimate for home repairs. A relative may be a bit demanding. Plans for socializing fall into place.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You will be in the mood for something different in the way of entertainment now. You will have success in reaching agreements with others. Partners are in sync. Couples will make plans for a special outing. Romance is a definite plus.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Some will receive a raise in salary or an important new moneymaking opportunity. Home decorators feel inspired now. Exercising initiative brings you gains. Your charming personality will be a factor in this week's successes.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You will want to save some time this week for sports and hobbies. New understandings are reached in romance. A work project this week will take more time than you had anticipated. You will opt for time for just the two of you this weekend.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You will find something unusual and unique when shopping this week. Time for yourself now will be utilized in studying or getting household chores out of the way. Exercise discrimination about whom you socialize with now.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You will be enthusiastic with this week's new ideas. Originality is at a peak now. You may make plans to throw a party. Be practical regarding business interests. Social graces are an asset.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Business talks will be highly success this week. You will express yourself to good advantage now and others will be impressed. Your money prospects turn for the better. You will hear some good news from a person at a distance.

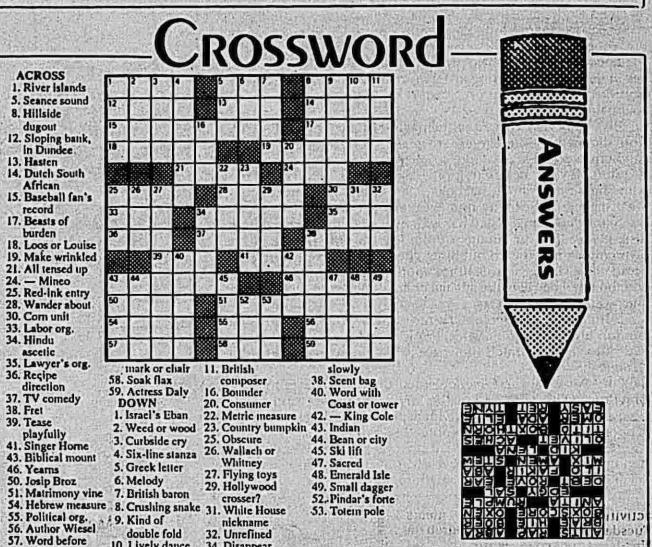

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Things go very much your way this week. You will be making plans for either travel or educational studies. Watch credit card use. Though extra money comes in now, it's up to you to hold on to it.

—Movie Picks-'Gilbert Grape' unusually good

Whenever one sees the name of Johnny Depp on a movie cast list we have come to expect the different, the unusual, and sometimes the weird, in contrast to his mundane role on TV's "21 Jump Street."

And his new flick, "What's Eating Gilbert Grape," is no exception, though it will probably be more widely accepted than "Edward Scissorshands," and "Benny and Joon."

Supporting actor, Leonard Di Caprio, who plays Gilbert's mentally-disabled brother, has been nominated for an Academy Award.

Endora is the boring Midwestern town where Depp's character Gilbert Grape lives along with his 500-pound mother and backward brother, Arnie.

The differences between Gilbert and his brother are easily defined because of Gilbert's inhibitions and Arnie's openess.

When Becky, well-played by Juliette Lewis, passes through-Endore, Gilbert pins his hopes of changing his life on a relationship with her.

This film, made in the Frank Capra vein, with a twist, is full of hometown warmth, though director Lasse Halistrom has cleverly kept it from being too saccharine with some of Depp's tart dialogue.

Leonard DiCaprio and Johnny Depp

One of the film's chief characters is the town itself, which is an usual blend of urban wickedness and small town naivette.

Will Gilbert escape the stifling clutches of the mundane town he knows, or will he discover something mystical in its tuneful qualities?

Can a town be judged by its inhabitants? One might be hard put to do so in the case of Endora. because much of its beauty or ugliness can be found in the eyes of its beholder.

The movie bears similarity to "Fried Green Tomatoes," minus some of the laughs and plus a dab of strangeness. We are giving "What's Eating Gilbert Grape" 3.5 stars out of a possible five stars. by GLORIA DAVIS

-What you think -

With so much election coverage, here are some calls that have absolutely nothing to do with any referendum, issue, or candidate.

Congratulations

Good morning Upservice. I really enjoy your column. This is going to be a little different. This is for my grandchildren that are getting married. Happy St. Patrick's Day, especially in our family. Katle and Jim are getting married. The best of everything, newlyweds. We all love you very much. God bless.

Happy mail customer

I am from Antloch, and I would like to send a big thank you to our postal workers, male or female, who come rain or shine, snow, ice, and even subzero temperatures to deliver our mall. A bit thank you to all you guys and gals.

He's got jobs

I don't have a gripe, but a public announcement. Anyone seeking employment? Motorola is looking for people at Grayslake and Libertyville. A number of positions are available, some for people right out of high school. Some professional positions too. Thanks.

Liked editorial

Your editorial page on March 4 titled "Resolved POW/MIA issue" should have been on the front page and some action should be taken on it. Congratulations to Richard Cutts for sticking up for the veterans. If more people listen to what he has to say, this country would be in much better shape. The veterans deserve better than they have received. Keep up the good work, Dick. Let's hear more. This is still America. Stand up veterans, let's be heard.

Big deal

I want to comment on your Feb. 25 article on "Teen lock-in, a successful event" at the Round Lake High School. You are talking about this as though it were something new. My son graduated four years ago and they had a lock-in every year. It is a wonderful idea and he enjoyed it, but it is not something new.

The bus stops here?

I heard that PACE is going to give up bus service from Waucond ,, Island Lake to Mundel in. Is that true?

would like to leave a message for all of you that were praying for my son Dean. He is a 7year-old who just had major surgery. Things came out great and he is doing well. He is home. Hopefully we will be out and about. We really appreciate the prayers. Thank you:

Lots of agencies

I think that the Chain O'Lakes waterway agency should be dissolved. It isn't doing anybody any good. All It is, is a bureaucratic plum. It is a golden egg for these guys. We are paying for the same things over and over. We have noisy boats that are not being taken care of. We have SAMP, and by the way, Frank Abderholden, If the agency is dissolved, IDOT will take over the project. So, how many agencies do we have to have? We have the Army Corps of Engineers, IDOT, the Conservation Department, we got McHenry County, we got Lake County, and the Waterway Agency. They are all doing the same thing, and, it's not getting done. I got a letter from the agency telling me what they did in 1993. Tell me what they dld from 1984-1992. Zlich, notta, nothing.

Editorial note: Dear reader, your call was much, much longer. All callers are reminded that Lipservice attempts to be short and snappy. Please consider writing a letter to the editor when you have a lot to say. By the way, Frank Abderholden is a reporter for the News Sun.

Tired of election

I don't think you will put this in the Lipservice but my gripe is why do we have to read about what is happening in Antioch Township in the Chicago Tribune Instead of the Antioch News Reporter? There is nothing of interest in the paper except Antioch politics. Thank you.

Editorial note: Dear reader, it is the week of the elections! But, the good news is that it will be over soon. If we had omitted election coverage, we would have gotten a lot more complaints. This too shall

Ask the kids

The chicken man says there are no gangs in Round Lake Heights. Maybe we should ask the kids.

School churning

I am damn mad. I am from West Trails Subdivision in Grayslake and have three small children. The grade center level concept is unacceptable. Four school changes in the first six years is totally ridiculous. Force the school board to develop a comprehensive strategic plan to guide us through the next three years. This school board referendum is poorly designed and will not fix our current problems. We do have a choice. No grade centers, and vote no. NOI

Sindles supporter

Integrity is what all mankind should aspire to. However, Sheriff Grinnell, whose signs stress integrity and wants Lake County residents to reelect, has no form of integrity. Ed Sindles has run a gentlemen's campalgn. His 4-foot by 4-foot signs have been destroyed by being kicked and run over by snow plows. Grinnell's signs are intact. Barbara Richardson, county coroner has supported Ed Sindles because she knows he can do the Job better, however she feels that Grinnell is still a good person. Two followers of Grinnell have placed campaign articles parked in her lot. This, to me, does not show much respect or Integrity. Nor has Grinnell condemned the behavior of those supporters who destroyed the signs. He should be retired.

Wants BEST candidate

I am an ACHS parent who received Vern Holmes letter. I have a question. Why hasn't BEST ever run anyone for the school board? Is it really about finding a solution or lining your pockets and lowering all of our property values?

Just the facts, please

This school referendum offered by District 46 is filled with incorrect facts and inflated numbers. How can they tell us that busing our children all over the place is not going to cost us anything? After attending two informational meetings I have still not seen any hard facts or figures on exactly how we are saving all this money with grade centers. As far as I am concerned, this referendum is insulting to me and assumes I am Ignorant and Just going to follow along with the other parents. Please vote no and make the board provide us with other options we know are avail-

Sports or food

The administration at Antioch Community High School has told us. We can either have high priced teachers or sports activities. Maybe we don't need either until school officials learn how to operate within a budget like the rest of us. If my family cannot afford to go on vacation for a couple of years, we don't. We don't just go anyway hoping, against hope, money will miraculously appear to pay for It later. Yet, the school has persisted in operating in this way year after year. Taxpayers will not approve a tax increase until the teachers also offer a wage freeze. Some older residents cannot pay anymore taxes. Why should 14year-olds get to play football while seniors can't afford to buy grocerles?

Find it yourself

The Fox Lake Grade School needs more money. Let the people who wanted and approve of the merger with Lotus School find this money. Don't ask the taxpayers for It. We had no opportunity to vote on the merger. Find the money yourself now.

Wage dispute

See LIPSERVICE page B23

The BEST group says that the teachers at ACHS only work five hours a day. They also supervise another hour, so that makes six. This does not include paper grading and lesson planning. A teacher friend figured out he makes roughly $10 an hour. You are screwed up BEST, it is below average wages for higher than average teachers.

Get real

The BEST group wants education only. No extra-curriculars for Antioch students. I am appailed at how little the students have at Antioch. Get real. You cannot live in a rapidly growing area without tax increases.

So tell her

I can't believe it. As a resident of Fox Chase in Lake Villa Township, I have just heard we may lose the Lake Villa Fire Department and that we may be changed to Round Lake. Please tell me that is not so. Not only will taxes go up, we will now have to start paying for emergency services at a cost of $300 a ride: Time is running out. Let's hear from you in Fox Chase If you don't want your taxes raised.

iceless again

It is "Iceless Hockey" again. I called several weeks ago complaining that the scores were not in the paper every week. I was told they were not in the paper every week but since that time they have been missing for two weeks. It is the end of the season. It is Important to the klds. But, your paper did not bother getting the results in again. Thanks a lot guys.

Just curious

Did anyone else see that beautiful cruise bus on March 9 at the Round Lake Walmart. Japanese business exited with briefcases? Wonder what they were doing at all American Walmart?

Looking for ideas

I am a mom with two children ages two and four. I want to stay home to see their wonderful "firsts." Yet, that childcare is an option but the kids are only young for so long. I am hoping to get ideas from others who are or were stay-at-home moms.

Only local complaints

This is the Fox Lake Press. Why do we have to hear complaints from Grayslake, Antloch, Wauconda? Let them complain in their own Editorial note: Dear reader. Lipservice is a county-wide effort. On a weekly basis, we seem to get more calls from a specific area than from others. Overall, though, it evens itself during the year.

Bothers her

I know by the time this is printed the election will be over. But, I would like to know how someone like Scott Paul in District 2, and Ken Domanchuk in District 1 can be used as spollers in the election. Don't they feel used by this? It bothers me.

Saved her

On March 6, 2:30 a.m., I had to have the rescue squad. I am a senior cit-Izen. I want to thank Mike, from Fox

Lake, as well as the other lovely people. I am alive today because of them. I also want to thank the deputies that followed. I live in Ingleside. God bless all of you,

Name dropper

I think it is pretty bad that when an we need a second income. I know ex-policeman from Wauconda is arrested on a stalking charge, does not have his name appear in the paper. It was because of who he was related to. A regular guy in Wauconda would have his name

Change the laws

I have a few things about Alice the Alligator from Fox Lake. The paramedic that turned her in should be totally ashamed. He saved someones life and then breaks her heart. I don't see where Alice is any more of a dangerous animal than someones boa constrictor that could get out and crish someone. The laws need to be changed.

Not his fault

This is to "Shame three times." Mr. Davis should get an honor for the roads this winter: It is not his fault that IDOT does not think we are big enough to get enough road salt. That is why the streets have been the way there were.

Important duty

I would like to set the challenge to *Don't call him." I think he is being a little bit unreasonable to say that jury duty is not very important. Why doesn't he go to the courts and see what is going on? Criminals are being turned loose every day because people are not there to watch It.

That's disgusting

This is for the person who is throwing either the human or dog waste on Main Street in Long Lake. You are a disgusting pig and Avon Township Highway Department Is, watching out for you. We will catch you.

Christmas is over

Okay, I cannot keep my lips sealed any longer. I have had it looking at my neighbor's Christmas ornaments up. Come on people, it is the middle of March. It is time to get the Easter eggs out.

Wants explanation

Could someone in your paper explain a few things please. I need to know about the Homestead Act and Circuit Breaker. We seniors got this mixed up real good. Your editor Is a nice person, maybe he can explain not just to seniors but to everyone. Please, try to correct this for us. I know it will be well appreclated. Thank you again.

Editorial note: Dear reader, glad to help! The senior homestead exemption is a $2,000 reduction from the assessed value of real property. The property must be occupied, as a principle residence, by a person 65 years of age or older. It can be either spouse who is 65 or older. The senior homestead exemption can reduce your tax bill by $160 to $180 and is not based on income or disability. Call your township assessor for more information. Circuit breaker is a program sponsored by the State of Illinois. Circuit breaker is based on income and amount of taxes or rent paid. Applicants must be 65 years or older, or disabled. At this publishing, the maximum income to be eligible for circuit breaker is $14,000. Circuit breaker also includes the pharmaceutical assistance claim.

Wants more

Lipservice, what you have done is a great idea. People really need to know that someone cares. It gives them a chance for hope. I also believe that you should have one page for results shown in your paper that solved some of these small problems. Otherwise, you have accomplished nothing but money in your own pockets. PS 1 will be ordering your paper soon because of your Lipservice. I was in the Round Lake Beach area and have moved to the Heights.

Art class

This is for the shrink at Antioch Community High School. My daughter is wearing a cast-boot onwhich someone drew a marijuana leaf or a maple leaf. If you are so concerned about it being representative of drug abuse, how about coughing up the $19 to buy her a new one? In the meantime, let's not worry about some silly little drawing. I have seen some really strange freaks running about that school. Worry about them instead. My daughter has been victimized enough.

Seasons of Long Grove changes with season

Correspondent

"The more things change, the more things change" might be an apt slogan for The Seasons of Long Grove, a new eatery which opens its doors at 314 Old McHenry Rd., on March 20, in the historic business district of the village.

Launched by business district entrepreneur John Mangel, the restaurant will feature a menu and decor which change with the seasons.

For instance, hearty entrees and soups will be offered during winter months and lighter fare and chilled soups served up in summer, Mangel's assistant, Sharon Frank, said.

The decor as well will be subject to seasonal variations. An atrium at the center of the restaurant will showcase seasonal flowers and other decorations.

Initially, Seasons will be open only for luncheon from 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., Frank said.

Beginning in April, continental breakfast and high tea will also be served.

The restaurant, which will be open seven days a week year 'round, will be available for private parties in the evening. Several "theme" dinners are also planned which will highlight a particular entree.

The buffet luncheon at Seasons will cost $7.50. It includes entrees, loads of salads, side dishes and "homemade" See SEASONS page C5

Classy banquet hall will be opening soon

TINA L. SWIECH

Staff Reporter

Coming soon to your area will be an exceptional banquet facility with the essence of a country club.

Entrepreneur/owner Paul Gasior and co-owner/Chef Ron Skow are excited about the grand opening of the Lakemoor located on Rte. 120 and Darrel Rd. 1 - 1/2 miles west of Rte. 12.

On April 1, the doors to the massive masonry establishment a merger between Local 150 Operating Engineers Union and Gasior and Skow, will unfold, offering a unique and beautiful setting which can serve up to 850 guests.

Everything from weddings to birthday parties to trade shows have already been booked to use the hall. Already a number of Christmas parties have been scheduled for 1994.

The electrical union, owner of the property, will use the building occasionally to hold their own functions as well, according to Gasior. Local 150 participated in a similar venture in Joliet, said the restaurateur.

Outside you will be pampered by the valet parking, and a gorgeous landscaped setting with 300 trees and shrubs newly plant-

INVESTMENT TRENds

Noah A. Seldenberg, Investment Representative of Edward D. Jones & Co.

Global investing offers opportunity

The world is changing. Recent years have brought the reunification of Germany, the formation of Economic European Community, the breakup of the Soviet Union and, most recently, a peace agreement between Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

As a result of our changing world, foreign economics are growing, and new markets are emerging. No longer does the United States dominate world markets. In 1970, the United States produced 47 percent of worldwide output. By 1992, that figure had declined to 31 percent, meaning nearly 70 percent of the world's goods and services are now produced by countries other than the United States.

Investors are taking advantage of this trend by looking for opportunities beyond the borders of the United States. Between 1980 and 1992, for example, U.S. holdings of foreign stocks grew 21 percent compounded annually.

Investing globally can be a good way to help diversify a portfolio. Just as there are opportunities in the United States, so are there opportunities around the world.

Global investing also can help reduce risk. When one country's economy is down, surely there's another one that's up. In fact, foreign stock markets have outperformed U.S. markets in 16 of the past 25 years.

But how does an investor begin "going global?" There are three strategies: Buy shares of mutual funds that invest in international companies, buy individual stocks and bonds of U.S. based companies with foreign markets, or buy individual stocks and bonds of foreign companies. Each strategy offers its own risks and rewards.

Mutual funds that buy stocks and bonds of international companies offer the expertise of professional money managers, many of whom live abroad. In addition, mutual fund companies have large research staffs who are familiar with global markets and maintain regular contact with foreign companies.

International mutual funds also offer built-in diversification by investing in a variety of companies and countries. Such diversification helps minimize the risks of an individual industry, nation or currency.

Buying individual stocks and bonds of U.S. based companies that market their goods and services in international markets allows you to invest in familiar companies while taking advantage of the higher growth rates of foreign economies. Many U.S. companies, such as McDonald's, Coca-Cola, General Electric and AT&T, are gaining market share in more parts of the world every day.

Selecting individual stocks companies can be a Seldenberg more challenging way to invest internationally. But it can allow you to take advantage of foreign economies that may be performing better than that of the United

States:

As with any investment, you should be aware of the risks. Global investing may offer economic, political, company-specific and currency risks. However, allocating a portion of our assets to international investments can be a great way to diversify your portfolio and take advantage of growing international markets.

A large stage elegant enough for any head table or band is available on the east wall of the wine, burgundy and beige colored interior.

"Banquets don't have to be cold," explained Gasior. "They can be done with flair and style and service."

And good food as well, if it's anything like the popular Longhorn Steak House, of which Gasior is the owner. Skow is formerly the chef at the Highland Park Country Club. "The food will be second to none," said Gasior.

Abbott to pursue FDA approval for use of clarithromycin

Abbott Laboratories is pursuing aggressively its clinical development program to evaluate the safety and effectiveness of clarithromycin (in combination with an ulcer drug) in the eradication of a bacterium thought to be a factor in the development of peptic ulcers.

The announcement by the Chicago-based manufacturer of pharmaceuticals, nutritionals, diagnostics, and hospital products followed release of a National Institutes of Health Consensus Statement on the causative role of the bacterium, known as Helicobacter pylori (H. pylori), in peptic ulcer dis-

Clarithromycin, a broad-spectrum antibiotic, currently is marketed in the U.S. under the trade name Biaxin® for the treatment of respiratory tract infections, skin and skin structure infections, and the AIDS-related infection known as disseminated Mycobacterium avium complex. The company "expects to file a supplemental new drug application to seek approval for the use of clarithromycin against H. pylori within the next 12 months," said Paul Clark, senior vice president, pharmaceutical operations.

According to the NIH Consensus Statement, there is now substantial evidence to indicate that H. pylori infection (in the absence of other precipitating factors) is causally related to the development of most peptic ulcers, and that persistent infection accounts for the high rates of ulcer recurrence. The goal of ulcer treatment, therefore, should be to resolve symptoms, heal the ulcer, and eradicate H.

"Eradication of H. pylori profoundly affects the natural history of duodenal ulcer disease,"said Richard H. Hunt, professor of gastroenterology, McMaster University Medical Centre. Dr. Hunt told the NIH Consensus Development Conference that reducing the rate of ulcer recurrence "has enormous cost effectiveness and quality of life implications that require further evaluation."

Unfortunately, cradication of H. pylori has proven difficult. None of the standard therapeutic agents for ulcers has significant effect on the bacteria, and no drug used alone has achieved adequate eradication rates.

Results of Abbott research suggest that the combination of clarithromycin with the anti-ulcer agent omeprazole may prove useful. This large, controlled study compared the efficacy and safety of the combination of clarithromycin and omeprazole versus omeprazole alone. In this study, patients treated with clarithromycin (for two weeks) combined with omeprazole (for four weeks) showed H. pylori eradication rates of 83 percent.

Additional data from this trial showed that the prevalence of ulcers six months after treatment was 4 percent among patients treated with clarithromycin and omeprazole, versus 55 percent in the group of patients who received omeprazole alone, suggesting that eradication of H. pylori may reduce the rate of ulcer recurrence.

Additional Abbott studies to evaluate the safety and effectiveness of the combination of clarithromycin and ulcer drugs in the treatment of H. pylori infection are now underway in the U.S. and Europe. The NIH Consensus Development Panel called for further research and well-controlled clinical trials to develop a drug regimen that is consistently effective, convenient and well-tolerated.

Home buyers should have good representation

There are many articles on how to select a listing agent in real estate, but few on how to choose a real estate professional when looking to buy a home. Collecting is an art

Collecting, it has been said, is a passion which transcends barriers of age, sex and society. Collecting whatever the choice of objects. antiques, old china and glassware or new pieces destined to become "investment" collectibles, has seemingly reached an apex today. becoming a passion to persons involved. These individuals vary from as young an age as ten years, to the highest imaginable age of senior citizens, and those in between; they comprise the well-known, the little known, rich and not-so-rich, all of whom are compulsive, in this

This collecting craze is evidenced today by the countless, diverse newsletters, collecting publications now available.

Current items in terms of popularity for collectors are the new Disney Classic Collection, handled by only 800 dealers in the country. Recently, new characters have been produced by Disney to give collectors new choices. Since the '30's when the first pieces hit the market there has been great demand. Apparently, most everyone, young or old, loves these fascinating characters. When Disneyana has been sold at auctions, an early Mickey Mouse Drum set sold for $525; a Mickey watch of the same vintage, for $400.

The long popular TV show, "60 Minutes," devoted an entire hour to the collecting phenomenon, in a not long ago segment, emphasizing, "collecting is a hobby that never ends."

One of the 800 merchandisers to be chosen by Disney to handle the new Classic Collection, and the only such shop in this area, is The Glass Impression, at 34014 Barron Blvd., on Route 83 in Grayslake. Owner, Verne Walker, admits he is"...never wholly prepared for what may become a collectors fancy," but adds he's observed in the store's 20 years of operation, that purchasers meanwhile enjoy the beauty of the objects, as well as a satisfaction that each piece of quality endures through the years. The store also features all types of exquisite china, glassware, porcelains and other home beautifiers.

John Wise, formerly of Lettuce Entertain You, has been brought in to manage the new restaurant. He describes the decor of Seasons as "elegant countryside."

The traditionally-appointed eatery will be housed in the historic building formerly occupied by the Hobson House restaurant.

The management at Seasons has "updated" the decor, replacing the homey floral wallpaper with light painted surfaces to brighten and open up the interior space. Deep greens, mauves and pinks will accent the decor.

The Hobson House, considered an institution in the village, closed December 31, 1993 after landlord Mangel failed to renew the restaurant's lease.

Mangel had wanted Hobson House manager Valerie Russell to make changes in her homestyle menu in order to attract a different clientele.

Russell, however refused to alter what her loyal customers had come to expect.

She has since had offers from several communities to re-establish her 30-year old business. A group of long Grove merchants including Village Tavern owner Norma Sayles, has asked that the village board support a plan to keep the Hobson House in the village.

Mangel hopes his new venture will attract patrons to eat and shop in Long Grove.

The ideas is to "bring 'em out and keep' em here," Frank said.

Estimated tax change is now easier

Congress usually isn't known for making life simpler for the rest of us. But one of the few bright spots in the new tax law is that making of quarterly estimated tax payments is easier now than it has been in the last few years. This is especially true for upper-income taxpayers whose income fluctuates annually.

For 1994, if your adjusted gross income (AGI) is above $150,000 ($75,000 if married filing separately), you can avoid underpayment penalties by making quarterly estimates totalling 110% of your 1993 tax or 90% of your 1994 tax. If your AGI is $150,000 or less, you can pay either 100% of your 1993 tax or 90% of your 1994 tax. The 110% and 100% payments of the prior year's tax are often called "safe harbors." Adhering to these percentages guards against penalties for underpayment.

The 110% safe harbor replaces the complex requirement which still applied to certain taxpayers in 1993. To avoid underpayment penalties in 1993, you had to prepay at least 90% of your actual 1993 tax if (1) your 1993 adjusted gross income exceeded $75,000, (2) your 1993 modified AGI exceeded your 1992 AGI by more than $40,000, and (3) you paid or should have paid estimated taxes in 1990, 1991, and 1992. Determining the correct payment each quarter was difficult and time consuming.

Whatever your income, you can pay your taxes through withholding, quarterly estimates, or both. You always avoid underpayment penalties by paying your full tax liability throughout the current tax year.

The 1994 estimated tax payment due dates are april 15, 1994; june 15, 1994; September 15,

TONY & KATHY DEBEVEC

REMAX HERITAGE 336-2600

PAGER 439-7244

1994; and January 16, 1995. When you're finalizing your 1993 taxes, don't forget your first 1994 estimated tax payment. And if you made a state estimated tax payment for 1992 in January 1993, don't forget to use that as a deduction on your 1993 income tax return.

It should also be noted that any underpayment which was caused solely by the changes in the tax law effective for 1993 will not be subject to underpayment penalties. A taxpayer can also elect to pay the increase in tax in three annual installments. Married individuals with taxable income of $140,000 and singles having taxable income over $115,000 have the most potential for having an underpayment situation created by the 1993 tax law and may want to consider paying any additional tax via the installment option.

Medical Society, Blue Cross, seek cooperation on quality

The Illinois State Medical Society (ISMS) and Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Illinois (BC/BSI) have achieved a new understanding on the issue of clinical practice guidelines, leaders of both organizations announced today.

After in-depth discussions between ISMS and BC/BSI leadership, both organizations have reaffirmed their mutual support for scientifically sound and clinically relevant practice guidelines to improve the quality of patient care, according to BC/BSI Senior Vice President C. Jonathan Shattuck and ISMS Chairman of the Board Jere E. Freidheim, M.D.

Practice guidelines are medical tools for reference and use by physicians, detailing standard, medically recognized treatments for various ailments and conditions. The purpose of guidelines is to set a general yardstick for high-quality, cost-effective care.

Last fall, BC/BSI announced the inclusion of practice guidelines in the contracts of 1,300 specialist physicians statewide, in three areas of specialty practice, who participate in the BC/BS Managed Care Network Preferred program. ISMS expressed strong concern about the origin and development of the guidelines, especially the potential impact on patient care in Illinois and the

Biofeedback sessions now at Condell

Dr. Jeanne King, psychologist and instructor of "Taking Control," a biofeedback course being given at Condell's Centre Club, says that biofeedback can help you tame everything from migraine headaches to phobias to temporomandibular joint (TMJ) syndrome.

"I've developed a protocol that teaches biofeedback in a way that people will understand and can integrate into their lives," says Dr. King, who received her Ph.D. in psychology from Northwestern in See BIOFEEDBACK page C7 perceived lack of broad-based physician input.

Both organizations have acknowledged BC/BSI's effort to synopsize practice guidelines developed by national specialty societies. Most importantly, both organizations have agreed that broad-based educational efforts and discussions within the state's medical community are essential to lend medical credence and acceptance to the guidelines, as well as to build physician understanding of the appropriate use of such guidelines by BC/BSI, and by other insurers and payers.

To further such communication in the future, ISMS and BC/BSI have agreed, on a continuing bases, to establish ongoing channels for input and exchange of views on a broad range of quality of care issues— including practice guidelines— that affect Illinois patients, physicians and payers. ISMS will participate in BC/BSI's continuing review and refinement of these guidelines.

The leadership of ISMS and BC/BSI will continue to meet at least twice yearly to promote continuing cooperation and dialogue.

"These new steps will greatly benefit BC/BS customers in Illinois," said Mr. Shattuck. "Our accountability to our customers is founded upon our ability to bring high-quality, cost-effective care patients throughout Illinois.

"We are enlisting ISMS in our efforts to educated the medical community on that mission, as well as gaining the broad-based clinical expertise of ISMS members in our quality assurance process. We firmly believe that this will well serve Illinois patients and physicians in an era of health reform, and better promote cost-effective medical care," Mr. Shattuck continued.

Dr. Freidheim, emphasizing that ISMS supports clinically sound and appropriately used practice guidelines, commented, "We can assist Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Illinois by bringing forth physicians' concerns about quality and cost, and helping solve problems and misunderstandings before they erupt. ISMS has played this role throughout our history, with government, business and other health care interests across the state. ISMS stands ready to work with any and all insurers, as well as other financial managers of health care resources, formally or informally, to improve the quality of medical care and benefits administration for Illinois patients, payers and physicians.

"Our strength is our 18,000 members and the care they give daily to patients. We need to work together to bring the best possible medicine to everyone in Illinois in the most-effective manner possible," Dr. Freidheim concluded.

ISMS represents 18,000 physicians statewide. BC/BSI is the state's largest provider of health insurance.

Highland Park Hospital holds program on infertility treatment

The number of couples seeking infertility treatment is expected to increase because couples are having their first child later in life, when age related factors may reduce pregnancy success rates. According to the American Fertility Society, at least one couple in six nationally is unable to conceive.

On Wednesday, March 30,

Highland Park Hospital will host alternatives. a free educational program for couples interested in learning about issues surrounding infertil-"Fertility/Conception Concerns Across Your Lifespan" will focus on current and future options in infertility treatment including assisted reproductive technology procedures, reproductive immunology and surgical Presenters will include Edward L. Marnut, M.D., reproductive endocrinologist and medical director of the Fertility Center of highland Park Hospital; Brian Kaplan, M.D., and Jorge Valle, M.D., specialists in reproductive immunology; and Colleen Wagner-Coughlin, M.S., embryologist and laboratory

The Fertility Center at Highland Park Hospital is Lake County's first fertility center providing a full range of assisted reproductive services. The Center's pregnancy success rate from assisted reproductive technology procedures is at least double the national average as maintained by the American Fertility Society.

Highland Park Hospital is located at 718 Glenview Ave. "Fertility/Conception Concerns Across Your Lifespan" will be held in the hospital's Education Center beginning at 7 p.m.; doors open at 6:30 p.m. Advance registration is required. To register, call 480-2626. For information call 480-3950.

Hospital holds recovery workshop

Health and social service professionals interested in Rational alternative Recovery, an approach to substance abuse treatment, are invited to attend a three-part training workshop presented by Forest Hospital beginning Thursday, March 31.

Succeeding sessions in the series will be held April 28 and May 26. The workshops will meet from 8:30 a.m. to noon at the Novick Auditorium of Forest Hospital, 555 Wilson Lane, Des Plaines. The cost of the series is $90.

Rational Recovery is a lifetime abstinence program that uses addictive voice recognition technique (AVRT) to help an individual gain control of the impulse to drink or use drugs. The program is based on the rational-emotive therapy principles of self-reliance developed by noted psychotherapist Albert Ellis, Ph.D.

Forest Hospital has the only Rational Recovery inpatient treatment program in the Midwest. (The hospital continues to offer programs based on the 12-step model, providing patients with a choice of treatment.)

The workshop provides ten credit hours in the following: Category II of the Physicians Recognition Award of the American Medical Association; Rational Recovery Specialist Certification and as continuing education for social workers.

Registration is requested. To register or for more information, contact Forest Hospital at 635-4100, ext. 363.

American Cancer Society receives Abbott grant

The Lake County Unit of the American Cancer Society has received a $10,000 grant from Abbott Laboratories.

The grant will be used for printing and distributing Spanish and English mammography literature.

Abbott Laboratories has been a long-time friend of the American Cancer Society," said Pat Rodbro, Chairman of the Lake County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

In 1993, Abbott employees pledged $169,000 to the Cancer Society in the annual Abbott Combined Appeal charity fundraising drive.

"It's through support from corporations such as Abbott that we can continue our fight against cancer," said Rodbro.

1979. "There is a subtle yet significant relationship between mental/emotional events and what's under your skin. For every outside event, there are internal emotional, mental and physical responses. Human beings have the ability to regulate these events."

Registration for the ten-week "Taking Control" Biofeedback and Stress Reduction Program is now open. The fee for the entire program is $1,900 and includes an initial assessment, introductory presentation, instruction, practice and coaching, integration and implementation and a final assessment.

The class program uniquely integrates both private, individual instruction and class training sessions. Registration and information are available by calling Health Promotions Department at Center Club, 200 W. golf Rd., Libertyville, or by calling 362-2905, ext. 5770. A non-refundable registration fee of $250 will be applied to the pro-

The therapy uses electronic devices that measure heart rate, peripheral blood flow, muscle tension and brain wave activity. Patients learn to regulate the negative physical, mental, emotional and behavioral effects that sustained stress and chronic pain have on them.

"Biofeedback is the process of taking what was previously unconscious and involuntary and bringing it under conscious and voluntary control," explains Dr.

Dr. King emphasizes that the program will not cause vitality to wane, but instead works like a "tranquilizer, antidepressant and stabilizer of well-being- and increases a person's energy."

Griefnotes

Funerals are for the living!

Funerals do not help the deceased, but they do help the living. Everyone who dies is important to someone - a mother, father, daughter, son, sister, brother, friend or colleague. When death comes, those close to the deceased usually have feelings they need to express. Memories of good times and bad come forth. Sentiments of love and sorrow rush out. Survivors may begin to evaluate their own lives. If death were not an emotional event, we would not need to mark it with a ceremony. Funerals provide a special way to express the important feelings we have.

" I placed this ad on a Tuesday in Lakeland Newspapers because, being a Wauconda Leader subscriber, I wanted my home offered locally. The Classified Ad-Visor helped write the copy and designed the ad in a very appealing manner, and it appeared in all 14 Lakeland Newspapers that Friday. By the next day I had received over 25 calls on the house. It was rented that day, but I still continued to receive calls, even two weeks after the ad ran.

Thanks, Lakeland, Great results!"

Easing Your Tax Burden

Filing early has no effect on being audited

There are glant alligators living in the sewers under Chicago; monsters really do hide under the bed; and if you file early you are sure to be audited.

Most people know the first two examples are clearly myths and dismiss them as nonsense. Yet many of these same people believe that filling your tax return early will increase your chances of being audited. I'd like to devote this column to debunking this myth and many others our customers have shared with me over the years.

The fact is, when you file has no effect on your chances of being audited. IRS computers score every return based on various entries and their relationship to one another. These scores are presently the primary way we select returns for audit. Programmers develop the formulas for this system before the tax year starts and apply them to all returns filed that year. The return you file in February gets the same score it would get if you filed an extension and filed in June.

In recent years less than half the returns had the peel-off name label from the filer's tax package attached. Some people believe that the label is also linked to audit selection. The truth is, the label has no secret codes. Your instruction book even has an illustration explaining all the label's contents. Using your label will help reduce the chance for error, cuts the processing cost, and best of all speeds up your refund if you are getting one.

I've often heard people say that the tax law is so complex that most people need professional help. In fact, just over half of all taxpayers prepare their own returns. We are constantly trying to make filling taxes easier for you. For example, this year there is a revised Form 1040EZ that can now be used by married taxpayers without dependents who file Jointly. The 1040EZ is a 10-line form instead of the 33-line Form 1040A. For those doing their own returns, we offer both live assistance and recorded tax tapes by phone. We also have year round offices for walk in assistance and hundreds of volunteer sites open during the tax season.

Another myth is that if you call our tax help line at 1-800-829-1040, we will take a closer look at your tax return. IRS assistors do not ask callers for their names or social security numbers, unless needed to resolve a tax account matter. We also do not have the caller ID system.

I've also heard from people who think you must be a minimum age to file a tax return, or that once you reach a certain age you can stop filing. Still others think, that once you file you must keep filing if you have any income. In fact, there are specific income thresholds that determine whether you must file, depending on your filing status. The amounts change each year because of Inflation adjustments and are higher for those age 65 or over. Over a million low income tax returns are filed unnecessarily each year, with the largest group coming from those 65 or older.

During 1993, we contacted most senlor citizen groups and centers to make those over 65 aware that they may not have to file tax returns. We are continuing that effort.

If you are not sure If you should file a return, or have any other questions about your federal Income tax, call our tax assistance line toll free at 1-800-829-1040. (1-800-829-4059 for TDD equipment).—by MARILYN W. DAY IRS District Director for northern Illinois

How To Survive The Job Search By Nancy Sakol

G: I have been unemployed for the past 7 months and for the first few months I searched actively. Friends tell me that I seem to be procrastinating and that I am lacking enthusiasm. My unemployment compensation will be running out soon and with the job market the way that it is, I seem to need new direction. I find myself sleeping until late morning, and by that time I tell myself it's too late to start calling companies. I make appointments for interviews and find myself making excuses for why I shouldn't go. I make the attempt to go through the newspapers each day and make calls for appointments to interview but I believe I need a kick. What can you suggest for someone in a slump?

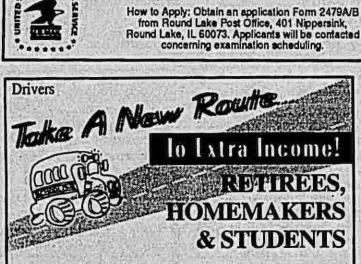

view but I believe I need a kick. What can you suggest for someone in a slump?

A: Know that your problem is a common one. It is best to bring yourself to understand that unemployment compensation is not "vacation pay". Yes, you definitely appear to be in a slump. Start by setting your alarm clock tomorrow morning to awake at 6:30 a.m. Get yourself up and out of the house to take a brisk walk or exercise to get your adrenaline pumping (kind of like getting your engine started). Make tomorrow (not the day after) the day for a change. Go through your closet and take out your best interviewing suit or outfit suitable for interviewing. Make sure that it is clean and pressed so you are sure to look fresh and make a clean impression. Next take a look in the mirror. Do you like what you see? If you feel you need to get your appearance in order (haircut, etc...) do so. If you are short of the cash it takes to get this done, look in the local yellow pages for a beauty school. Most often they will give you a cut and style free of charge or for a minimal fee as they have students training for their licenses. Do not be afraid... these students are supervised by professionals. Take a look at your resume... (after 7 months of being unemployed, you should have one) be sure that it is updated. Check for errors, proofread...proofread...proofread. Errors are most unacceptable. Don't sit at home sending resumes through the mail. This is an exercise in futility after this length of time unemployed. Your time will be better spent if tonight you sit and circle those ads that you see in the paper that you can be prepared to call on for an interview first thing tomorrow morning. Set a specific amount of time to be on the telephone. Get those interviews set up, leaving yourself time to get from one to the other. Try to avoid any overlapping. Set appointments only if you intend to keep them. Don't waste other people's time...you have already wasted enough time of your own. Make sure before interviewing that you have a good, healthy, "I be of help know that you are avidly seeking employment. If you make a change in yourself, the rest will fall into place. Good luck!

You know spring has finally let's play ball! team be back for a another NSC lived when you hear. Let's play ball! title? We'll just have to wait and Baseball and softball fans don't determine when spring begins by the shadow of a furry little groundhog on Feb. 2, rather they associate the first day of spring with opening day.

For baseball and softball lovers alike, Lakeland Newspapers has prepared a special section dedicated to high school baseball and softball teams as well as to the local community college.

Major league fans are walting for many questions to be answered. Will the Toronto Blue Jays (you know, that team from Canada) capture a third World Series in a row? Will the Chicago White Sox earn another Western Division title in the American League? Will the Chicago Cubs finally win a penant after nearly a half century of trying?

High school fans are asking similar questions. Will Libertyville and Stevenson dominate the North Suburban Conference? Will the Mundelein softball

In anxious anticiaption for the baseball and softball season, team photographs were taken during spring training before many teams had the opportunity to make final cuts. That's the whole purpose of spring training: To observe young talent compete with the more experienced players for a spot on the team roster.

While the College of Lake County Lancers begin their season this week, high school teams open their seasons during the last week of March and the first week of April.

This section opens with a preview of the Lancers as well as a uniformed team photo of the baseball squad. The remaining pages are dedicated to area high school team photos and schedules. Individual previews of baseball and softball squads will be forthcoming in the weeks to come.

So let's "Batter up and play ball!"

Pitching, newcomers hold keys to CLC nine chances

STEVE PETERSON

Staff Reporter

College of Lake County baseball Coach Gene Hanson knew he had to hit the recruiting trail for the 1994 baseball season.

So far, in pre-season drills and fall practice, the Lancers newcomers are right on schedule.

"I am overloyed with the freshmen. This is the most freshmen I have kept - 17 out of 25 and their skill level is very good and their work ethic is positive," Hanson sald.

CLC was at Millikin in Decatur last weekend in preparation for a 13-game Orlando, Florida trip.

Hanson believes pitching will determine how far CLC comes to reaching last year's 29-12 status. Some 11 pitchers are trying to find their niche, five of whom are sophomores with experience.

Dan Torresin of Tremper, Wis. returns after a 6-3 season on the right side and lefty Scott Lucadello (4-1) are the mainstays.

Tim Kennedy of Liberytville returns after a year off due to an arm injury. Round Lake product Derek Hart and lefty Kelth Slove from Stevenson return.

"Hart looks super. He got his bell rung last year (2but he is our best pitcher now," the coach commented.

Brett Bowles, one of the outstanding freshman Hanson has on his roster, is making an impact early.

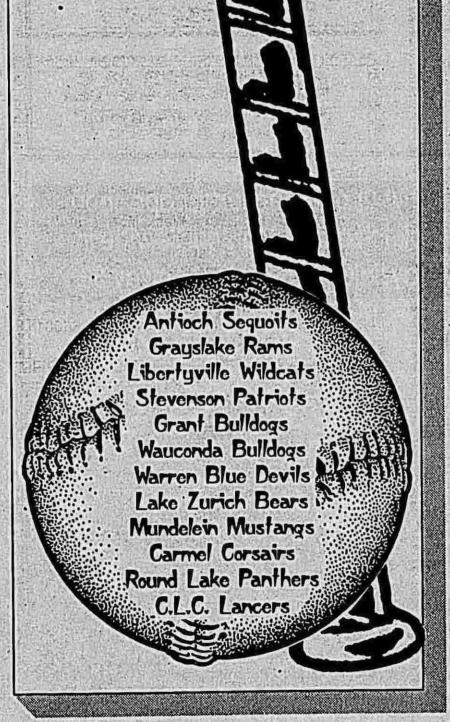

Bowles is a steady pitcher who can challenge hitters and throw a lot of strikes. He mixes it up," Hanson said.

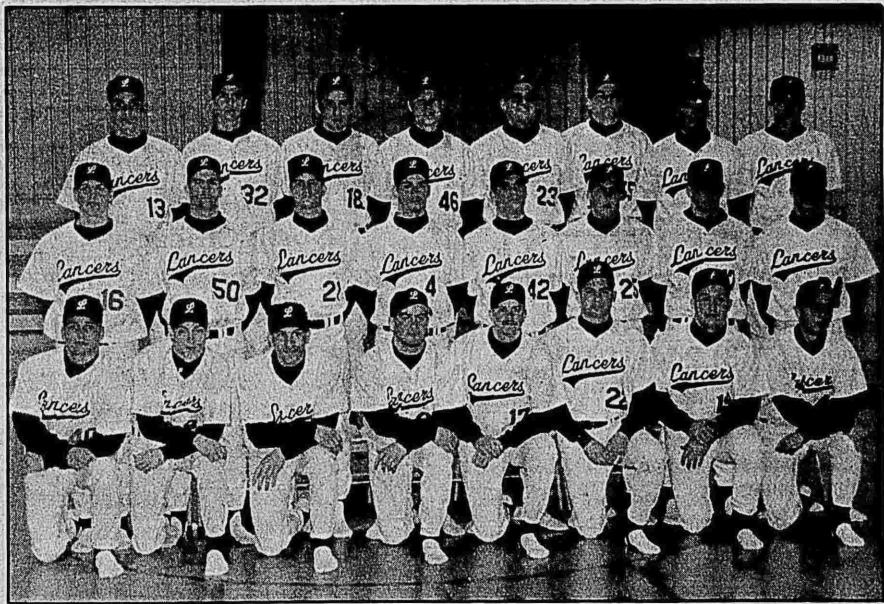

CLC fans should not expect to see many K's on their scorecard.

*Our pitchers know how to move the ball around. .We have seven or eight guys we can count on, and that is the most in 10 years," Hanson said.

Carmel grad Dan Devito, Zion grad Josh Williamson and Tom Kristof of Barrington round out the pitching staff...

CLC softball contingent vows to make league run

College of Lake County's softball team will be a determined bunch when the Skyway Conference season gets underway next month.

The Lancers, accustomed to finishing first or second, dropped to third in the league in 1993.

"It is always hard to tell offensively. We are in a batting cage and have looked good; but it is different against live pitching," CLC Coach Sue Garcia said. Five sophomores, three starters return from a team which finished at 18-18 but made the state finals.

April Kilman, first base, is back as the leading CLC hitter after a .386 average last year.

Others returning are Michelle Gamble of Waukegan and Michelle Olson of Grayslake, both outfielders.

Terrilynn Starkey, who led Mundelein to the sectional at Barrington last year, leads a group of talented freshmen. She will catch and be the designated hitter.

Vicki Wyatt, an infleider-outfielder, could be a factor offensively, Garcia sald.

Trisha West of Libertyville figures to be the back-up catcher.

Erln Kline, a Grant High grad, is pushing Kiliman for the first-base job. "She has to hit a little better," the coach commented.

Dawn Morley has switched from shortstop to second base for CLC. "She is quick and has good Trecla Fullerton, from Grant, is a reserve second baseman while Jenni Bishop, from Wauconda, is a reserve infleider.

Jennie Wilbur of Wauconda gives the Lancers two WHS grads. She is penciled in for third base.

Jamie Kania, from Carmel, is an outfleider. Beth Smith, from Carmel, leads a group of righthanded pitchers.

Amber Gathman, a Grant High product, also looks to contribute as does Robyn Horton, from Antioch. Horton was 10-9 last year.

Our pitchers are not going to strike a lot of people out, but will keep it around the plate," Garcia said.

In other words, don't expect any Sheryl Panek or Jill Tegmeyer types.

CLC was 3-7 in last year's trip to Arizona. "We hope to finish about .500," Garcia, in her eighth year, said.

CLC womens softball team

Scott Cartler, a freshman from Deerfleld and Steve Taylor of Grayslake will share the catching position, at least in the early going.

Hanson said the fielders' skills are excellent. Second baseman Heath Cummings is back as is Kurt Bruksch (Carmel) at first.

Shortstop Scott Ellenwood of Round Lake and Kurt Salata, from Carmel are both freshmen vvina for playing time.

Dean Clark leads the outflelders. He had a .383 batting average last year and will again patrol center field.

"He is a solid player. He ins a leader and the type of hitter we could not ask to do more," Hanson sald.

Another Wisconsin high school standout, Tony Junkel, is in right after missing a year due to a knee injury.

"He could play pro ball. He is such an offensive threat. He has an Andre Dawson (former Cub) type arm," Hanson sald, Bob Olson, out of Warren, is the leading candidate in left. "He covers a lot of ground and has a good arm. He has a nice, compact swing and hits for average and power," Hanson said.

Ex-Ram Alex Ortigosa and former Warren standout Glenn Chesser round out the outfield candidates.

CLC is defending Skyway conference champs and the league title is always the first goal. The second is the state finals, which CLC qualified for last year.

Our conference is competitive and with only 10 games, there is not a lot of room for error," Hanson said.

As opening day nears spring training has begun for the Wauconda Buildogs. Returning to the squad this year includes seniors Kevin Cajda, Jason Opsai, Kurt Van Alstine, Cory Kazimour, Ron Lindsey, Braden Cheshire, Chris Lundston and Junior James Schmuck. Others trying out for the team include Chris Van Alstine, Mike Schmantz, Jeff Gertz, Justin Murphy, Ray Porter, Mike Seltz, T.J. Cunningham and Philip Niketas. The Buildogs will be led by the same coaching duo: Coach Jim Van Fleet and assistant coach Bill Silker.

Just as their male counter parts are gearing up for the baseball season, so, too, are the girls preparing for the softball season. Returning to the team this year are Lisa Campbell in center field, Wendy Baxter at first base, Becky Williamson behind the plate, Jamie Stahl at third base and pitcher-outfielder Megan Brill.

Newcomers to the team include Orlena Ayala, Cristi Carey, Heather Caroselli, Michelle Rendi, Tina Opsai and Erin Nitz. Both Opsai and Nitz are not pictured. The team will be coached by Kerry Kohlbacher and his assistant Tracey Wolff.

The Warren baseball team will begin play this year with a predominantly young squad. Coach Dar Townsend said the inexperienced team will have to be aggressive on the base pads in order "to manufacture some runs." Pictured in the back row are seniors Jeff Knapp. Jeremy Salmi, Derek Ramsden, Andy Strahn, Matt Lux,

Last year's Warren softball team was burdened with a season filled with frustration. But last year's young players now have a year of experience under their belts and could bring the Blue Devils a competitive season. Seated in the first row are Jodi Botsford, Jenny Slobodzian, Shely Broeder, Elizabeth Van Daele and Ky

SALLY D. COFFELT, CLERK OF THE 19TH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT COURT WAUKEGAN, ILLINOIS

DERRY

Brick and glass cover the entire front facade of the Derry, a four bedroom single-level, designed o meet the needs of a contemporary family. Nine-foot-high ceilings throughout add to the sense of spaciousness in this 2,500 square foot home. This plan contains so much storage space, that the people who live here will have no excuse for not putting things away. The largest are the attic and basement. Three dormers brighten the long attic that nestles under the central gable.

Storage on the main level includes a coat closet in the entry, a linen cabinet in the bedroom wing, and a large walk-in pantry and a broom closet in the kitchen. Built-in cabinets line the wall over the washer, dryer and freezer in the utility room, and over the workbench in the garage.

Skylights provide so much natural illumination in the huge family room and kitchen that artificial lighting is rarely needed during the day. The tile-hearthed fireplace that spans the far corner of the family room provides an additional heat source and offers flame-watching opportunities in winter. Sliding glass doors open onto a wide railed deck.

A long eating bar separates the kitchen and family room. Amenities in the kitchen include a threesection sink, a circular work island, and a bayed nook. Standing at the sink, you gaze through a garden window, across the deck and into the back yard.

The formal living room and dining room are at the front, on either side of the entry, as is a small Ifice and the master suite. Light streams into the master suite through four skylights. This room could be built with either a vaulted or a flat ceiling with deep wells for the skylights. A window lets light into the large walk-in closet. The dual-compartment private bathroom comes outfitted with both an oversized tub and an oversized shower. Two more basins are outside of the bathroom, in the dressing area.

For a study kit of the DERRY (333-300), send $9.00, to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2307-LP60, Eugene, OR 97402 (Be sure to specify plan name & number). For a collection of plan books featuring Landmark's most popular home plans, send $20 to Landmark:

Take 1994 Dream Home survey

Experts in any field are generally in heavy demand. That's a given.

But what you may not realize is that you're an expert of sorts when it comes to home design. And you're the foremost expert when it comes to selecting the features and amenities you would include (and leave out) of the home of your dreams. Nobody else can provide that information with any degree of certainty.

So once a year, Landmark Designs in partnership with Lakeland Newspapers Invites readers to share their expertise by participating in a Dream Home survey. The form at right, makes the process easy and fun, whether you're planning to build a home or not. It includes the same types of questions architects, designers and real estate agents ask to determine their clients' wants and needs.

Feel free to attach letters, 🚕 sketches and any comments or inspirations that come to mind. Throughout the 17 years Landmark has been designing homes, readers have always been one of the richest sources of new Ideas. So don't be shy, the more detailed, the better.

After the results are talled, Landmark will design a national 1994 Dream Home. In addition, because area preferences vary widely, Landmark will also custom design a home to meet the exact specifications selected by readers of this newspapers. Where response is high, Landmark will come up with three plans—small, medium and large.

Mail forms to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2307-DLP60, Eugene, OR 97402.

Brian Martorano of Lake Zurich, a senior, is the fourth starting pitcher at Illinois State University.

The present of CLC players are trying to join the ranks of Lancers drafted by the pros. All told, 21 have been selected.

CLC notes: CLC Coach Gene Hanson is going solo this year.

"I have probably had an assistant for about half of my 21 years here," he said.

Wildcats

agenda since his early basketball years.

Chad Lee, the hero in the triple-overtime win over Mundelein to get the Wildcats to Evanston, had 12 points, 2 of 4 from three-point land. The most important came for a 39-36 lead with 1:23 left in the third.

Even if the Wildcats do not make it to Saturday's semifinal round against a team which defeated Mundelein, the team has another goal in Champaign.

"I think we are starting to earn respect, especially for the North Suburban Conference," Heldman said.

"If we can go down there and beat Boylan, maybe we can gain some respect," LHS Coach Max Sanders said. "We do not have the numbers of teams in Lake County, but we do have some pretty good basketball teams."

A three-pointer by Heldman, one of six on the night at Welsh-Ryan Arena, gained the Wildcats a 48-44 lead. A Devine hoop gave the Wildcats a six-point lead with 5:14 to go and thoughts of Champaign were dancing in the heads of those colored in orange and black.

Libertyville stayed on an even keel with Weber the first three quarters, recovering from a 7-2 deficit at the outset.

The Wildcats solved the inside attack of Weber (20-10) led by 14 points and 8 rebounds from Willie Tate and 11 points from Kelvin Woodruff and Dell Robertson from the outside.

The Wildcats are a 22-7 unranked team which has more depth, observers say, than the 1991 team which placed fourth.

"You don't worry about scoring points, just go in there and play hard," Jayson Via (4 points) said.

Eric Fischer, Tim Beshel and reserves Brandon Bracciale and Eric Frykholm are at the ready to give the likes of Heldman, Carruthers and Lee a rest.

Something the Wildcats as a team do not plan to do until Saturday night.

It is difficult, if not impossible to get 4,200 people to agree on anything.

Time of day can be tough.

But on this very special night in Waukegan, one phrase echoed from one mouth to another after Libertyville's unlikely-but-true 84-83 win over Mundelein in triple overtime.

"This was the best high school game I have ever seen," was echoed through the packed gymnasium of hallowed East High. That is, if you were not celebrating at midcourt or wondering why a 17-footer by a junior guard ended the season for a fifth-ranked team.

Lee took a perfect bounce pass from Jamie Carruthers who had strong rotation on his shot. With time expiring, there was some doubt as to the fate of the effort as it hit the rim.

The ball was over the rim enough and stayed there to allow a wild LHS celebration.

"I started to call for the ball and he (Carruthers) hit me. "I had the shot the whole time, but I stepped up my defense," Lee Matt Heldman, Libertyville (21-8) leading scorer, described the 14 points the Wildcats received from redheaded Lee as huge.

"We definitely picked up the defensive intensity. In the second half, they had Gerald Coleman on me and another guy," Heldman said.

Heldman was originally the go-to player for the Wildcats.

"They actually did us a favor by showing their defense. We were going to go to Heldman, but Carruthers just had Miller (Thad) on him," Libertyville Coach Max Sanders said.

The Wildcats, who lost to Mundelein in overtime in January, qualified for the Sweet Sixteen for the second straight time, third in four years.

The Wildcats are indeed getting used to the environs of Northwestern University's Welsh-Ryan Arena.

"All the kids played hard and did a great job. We had our chances. I will remember this as Kyle's senior season and the 28 wins," Mundelein Coach Dennis Kessel said of his 28-2 season.

Kyle Kessel finished with 33 points to easily pace all scorers.

Senior Carruthers led the winners with 25 points and the 6-5, 220 pound senior helped the Wildcats gain key rebounds.

Gerald Coleman nearly was the Mundelein hero. He hit a three-pointer to close regulation with a 70-70 tie. He then gave Mundelein its last lead at 83-82 with 10 seconds left in OT No. 3.

Alexander, Huskies earn selection to NCAA tourney

STEVE PETERSON

Staff Reporter

Two former standouts of women's Lake County basketball attempted to continue their seasons last week at the Mid-Continent Women's basketball tourney in DeKalb.

Jasmine Strange, a sophomore from the University of Illinois Chicago, scored 16 points and had 11 and 8 rebounds as the Flames reached the semifinals, only to lose to eventual runnerup Northern Illinois University.

The home Huskies were upset by University of Wisconsin-Green Bay 73-70 in the championship game.

UIC coach Eileen McMahon had praise for Strange after a 63-56 semi-final win Valparaiso.

"She has developed a lot of confidence. All she has to do is grab an awareness of the court," McMahon said.

Strange was 8-for-17 shooting from the field against Valparaiso. The Warren Township High grad finished with 11 rebounds as the Flames notched their 12th win of the season.

Strange sank some key shots, including two free throws with 10:42 left for the lead and the game's final basket.

In the semifinal, it was just too much NIU rebounding, although Strange did manage 11 points.

McMahon said Strange's strengths include her attitude and athletic ability. Strange was captain of a 27-2 1990-91 Warreni squad which advanced to the Sweet Sixteen. A knee injury sidelined her one month into the season, but she has since recovered from that. She averaged 4.3 points a game for the Flames last year.

Caryn Alexander started the tourney as the center for NIU, but never did reach double figures in three games. She, however, had a chance to contribute once again as the Huskies battled Southwest Missouri State in the first round of the NCAA Women's tournament. The bid was NIU's fourth Albright-Dieterle said. in five years.

NIU had its troubles in the post against opening round foe Wright State. A full-court press allowed NIU to pull away in the second half.

"That was our worst half. That will make us work harder next game," Alexander said.

Alexander gained NIU's attention when she led the College of Lake County to its first final four NJCAA regional appearance. Alexander is known for her deadeye free-throw shooting, as she has made each free throw in games' final 10 minutes.

All-America guard E.C. Hill led the Huskies effort with 24 points in the title game, but fouled out with 4:46 to go.

Charmo Stallworth led the Huskies efforts in Hill's absence and scored 23 points.

Alexander, who prepped at Highland Park High, is a 6-2 center. She contributed 3 rebounds in just under 20 minutes.

The Phoenix shot 56 percent from the field compared to 35 percent for the home team.

"I am extremely proud of this team. It showed character and poise," UWGB Coach Carol Hammerle said.

Sunday was a nervous morning in DeKalb.

After Leslie Pottinger's lastsecond, off-balance shot missed by a wide margin, there may have been just a small amount of doubt as to whether or not NIU would get a bid.

What began by watching the pairings show on TV ended with watching game films of the Bears, as NIU gained the 11th seed in the Midwest.

"It just happens that people lose," Jane Albright-Dieterle said of her 24-5 team.

Weeknights at 5:30 & 7:30 p.m.

"We rolled out the red carpet and they drove through,"

Center Kim Wood did the Huskies in with her 9-for-10 shooting from the field, 11 rebounds and 18 points.

Despite being an all-American sitting next to her coach in a crucial time, Hill did not blame the officiating.

"I just go out and play," she said.

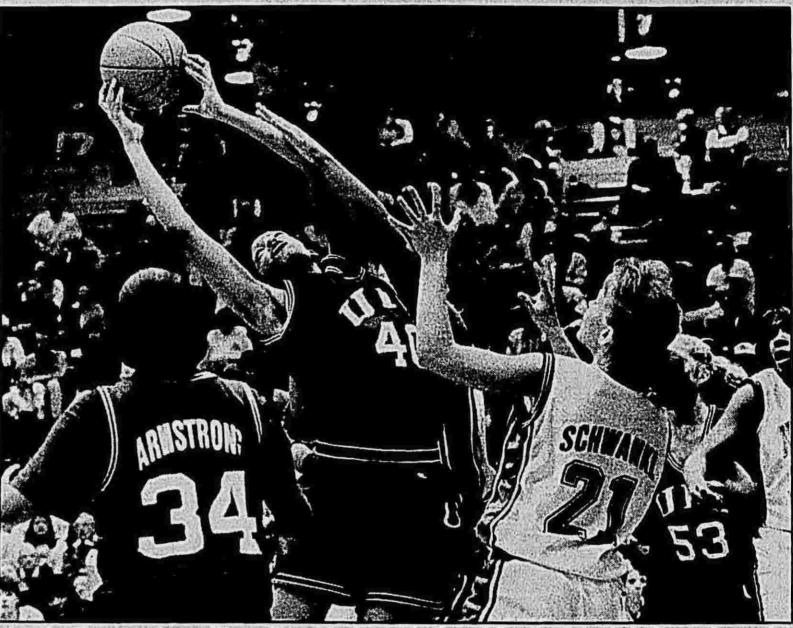

"Our post players did not score," Albright-Dieterle said.

NIU recovered from a 20-6 deficit in the first half and even had the 2,000 plus, fans on their feet when Dana Lau hit a 13-footer for a 54-48 NIU lead with 11:15 left. The Phoenix regained the lead with 7:12 to go and the Huskies had to play catch-up.

On the bright side, the Huskies lost the league title and a tourney home game chance, but not their season.

"On the positive side, this was the last game we could lose," Albright-Dieterle said.

Area racers win accolades at 17th annual BARS show

For the second consecutive year, Landry Potter of Genoa City. Wis., and his asphalt late model took the Larry's Mobil Service Appearing Overall which he campaigns regularly at Lake Geneva Raceway received the highest number of judge's points based upon completion, general appearance and showmanship from the 41 entries on hand for the show's five-day run March 2 to 6 at Lakehurst Mall in Waukegan.

"The crew worked really hard, especially the last two weeks," said Potter. "We didn't think we'd even make the show, then when we saw the great field of entries, we weren't sure if we even had a chance."

"I'm grateful to KJ Body for painting the car, Dave Jefferies at Biron Signs for lettering it, and especially my crew for the long hours they spent on it," continued Potter. "We'll go back again next year to see if we can do it again."

Division award winners were: Scott Kuxhouse of Round Lake in sportsman/street stock; doublewinner Tom Cox of Park City in sprints and modifieds; Tom Jones of Gurnee and his ASA AC-Delco Series Pontiac late model in asphalt late models; 11-year-old Ole' Plaine School student Pete Llamas of Gurnee in junior dragsters; Bob Schultz of Park City and his 1970 AMX drag car in fender drag cars; Rich Giertz of Lake Villa and his midget in open division; Matt Roebuck of Gurnee in mini-sprints; Dr. Ken Johnson of Paddock Lake in mini-modifieds; and Denny Norton of McHenry with his Ford Monster

Receiving runnerup honors were: Jim Kiellander of Twin Lakes (street stock); Raymond Hensley of Lake Villa (Interstate Racing Assn. outlaw sprint); Jim Uttech Jr. of Kenosha (modified); Len Nowosel of Grayslake (ARTGO late model) Greg Nickelson of Lemont (junior dragster); Rich Lucas of Burlington, Wis. (1976 Monza drag car); Mike Faser of Naperville (nitro-fueled altered funny car) in open division; Todd Lehr of Wilmot (mini-sprint); Jim Sullivan of Antioch (mini-modified); and John Schultz of Park City (Ford off-road truck).

Kenosha's Dennis Spitz and his team were recognized for their outstanding contribution to the show with two entries, one sprint and one modified, each of the past two years.

"This was among the most diverse fields we've ever had at the show," said Show Promoter Mike Rabicz.

"There were 20 different types of motorsports represented which offered a little something for everyone.

I wish to express my sincere appreciation to all of the show participants, families and crews. With the show being the earliest it ever has, I know there were many long hours and sleepless nights in the garages, plus the elements to combat this year with the heavy snows and record cold."

Show participants besides award winners were: Bobby John Hensley of Round Lake (sportsman); Ed Maeder of Pewaukee (restored asphalt modified show car); 9-year-old Kimbra Starr Fuesting of Beach Park (junior dragster); Larry Vandervere of Beach Park (modified); 78-yearold Frank Peardon of Milwaukee (1972 Chevelle drag car), the world's oldest licensed NHRA drag racer; Todd Hepfner of Sussex (modified); Bill Dean of Zion's modified to be driven by his son, Doug, and Ken Davis.

Gene Pennington Waukegan (street stock); Chris Spaulding of Gurnee (asphalt late model); Dan Smith of Wauconda (mini-sprint); 17-year-old Wilmot High School senior Phil Schultz of Silver Lake (mini-modified); Roy Morrison of Antioch (mini-modified); Bill Lutz of Chicago (Damn Yankee jet rocket car); Dennis Klumb of Mequon (super-modified); Kurt Winker of Kenosha (modified); Mike Ishkanian of Arlington Heights (formula Indy Champ); and Eric Dawson of Genoa City (sport truck).

Christian values, heritage now Landry's main topics

STEVE PETERSON

Staff Reporter

Following eggs and bacon, there were a couple of references to football by one of the most recognized football coaches.

But the majority of Tom Landry's talk at the Atrium restaurant in Rolling Meadows had nothing to do with x's and Instead, Landry centered on Christian values and preserving the American heritage, two of his favorite topics in the post-Dallas Cowboys years.

"I like being a judge better than a football player because they do not boo you," former Bears place-kicker Bob Thomas, now a judge, joked.

"Landry is the upper echelon of the football pecking order. He shares Hall-of-Fame status with Walter Payton and knows a lot about seizing every moment, especially in the final two minutes of the football game," Thomas said of Landry.

Landry coached in five Super Bowls, winning two and amassing 270 wins in 29 wins in Dallas.

"My biggest concern is about children and preserving our heritage," Landry said.

Landry exemplifies the values of Congressman Phil Crane, who was seeking re-election Tuesday and backs the 8th Dist. representative, according to Thomas.

Landry has grave concerns for what he calls "the rising tide of secularism. The genius of our Constitution allows for individual sovereignty and limited government. The Declaration of Independence is not just a political document, but a manifesto of all nations," Landry told the gathering of Republicans.

He said he agrees with former treasury secretary William Simon, who cautioned against a movement which could turn against freedom.

"Public debit is the greatest of things to be guarded against," Landry said. "Personal righteousness is the key. There is a battle between religion and irreligious," Landry said.

The former football coach, known for his hat and stonefaced look on the sidelines, hit the Supreme Court decisions for restricting religious freedom. "Ninety-seven percent of Americans believe in God," he said.

"We are on a catastrophic course but it can be reversed," Landry said.

"I have never been intimidated by the odds. We have won and lost battles, but the war goes on," Crane said.

The gathering was emceed by Jerry Rose. Gospel singer Portia Wallace sang a song which Crane wrote lyrics to as well as closing: with "God Bless America".

Then it was off to get out the vote in the heated four-person Gary Skoien, Judy race. McCracken Svenson and Peter Fitzgerald were trying to unseat the 25-year Congressman.

The game was theirs for the Libertyville's Matt Heldman took the ball out of bounds with a certain look of determination in the super sectional tilt against Chicago Weber. Heldman took a sharp pass from Sean Devine off a give-and-go for a layup, one of 10 baskets for the night.

After a Weber turnover, Jamie Carruthers canned a three-pointer and the Wildcats were up 45-41 and on their way to Champaign for the second time since 1991.

The Wildcats could celebrate early as the Libertyville squad made their free throws down the stretch for a 62-51 win. The victory positioned the Wildcats for a run at the state title at the University of Illinois Elite Eight. LHS played Rockford Boylan at 2:30 p.m.

"We started to look to score, looking to make the basket. In the first half, I think we were content with passing the ball around. We were trying to make something happen in the second half. That was the first three I took the whole game. I was open, I hit it and I was glad it went down. It was a big shot," Jamie Carruthers said.

"You almost had to look at it as another game," Carruthers (10 points) said.

Selected Waukegan sectional thoughts:

There is a danger when one begins to hit the three-point shot in the pre-game competition.

That is, you will not have any strength left for the real game.

Sean Devine of Libertyville did not fall into that trap last week in Waukegan. He canned the first 7 of 8 three-point tries and then went on to win the competition with 10 of 15. He even canned a couple early on in Libertyville's 84-83 triple overtime upset of Mundelein.

Geoff Sponholtz of Grayslake, who fell victim to the three-point dilemma in the sectional opener, was second with 8. Mundelein reserve Matt Weitzel had 8 as well. Neeraj Lal of Lake Zurich secured the fourth and final position from the Waukegan sectional at Champaign with a 7.

What a way to end a career. Imagine your final basketball game being a triple overtime thriller with an upset no less. That is just what Dick Hyde enjoyed Friday night. He and 4,499 of his closest friends crammed into the East High gym to witness as memorable a barnburner as one could hope.

"A lot of work goes into this," Hyde said after the second semifinal, a 72-70 Libertyville win over Zion-Benton.

For Hyde is retiring after this year, hanging up the scheduling pencil as athletic director at Waukegan.

"I don't things like Pack the Place because after the promotion, you are back to your regular attendance," Hyde mentioned.

There could be no publicity and the Mundelein and Libertyville communities would have filled the hallowed halls of East High gym. Even the Chicago sports radio types wanted to be part of the action, but Hyde declined.

Hyde has coached football for 25 years, wrestling for 20, baseball for 30 and even had a short stint as a diving coach at the Waukegan school.

"I love all sports. There is no such thing as a minor sport. Golf, tennis, cross country and swim athletes work just as hard as football and basketball players, but they are not as visible," Hyde said.

Hyde, always the politician even when he is not acting in his capacity as alderman, ably handled the question about the biggest sports accomplishments in Waukegan.

"The coaches have just been terriffic," Hyde said.

Hyde loved the sectional, 1994 even before the LHS-MHS thriller. "Look at Grayslake, a school of 800, comes in and gives Mundelein a scare," Hyde said.

Interviews are expected to take place soon for someone who may have the title of athletic director, but not replace Hyde.

"I'll be around. I was born and raised here," he said.

Here's hoping next year the sectional stays right where it belongs.

"We stuck together this time," J.R. Jurecko of the 'Cats said.

Defense and rebounding are the two main ingredients which have carried the 21-8 Wildcats to the brink of another trip to Champaign.

Jurecko knew little, if anything, of the mystic of playing at Assembly Hall, as he was playing eighth-grade hoops in Cleveland.

Jurecko had 4 points in the MHS upset.

Nice move:

A group of 22 Mundelein High basketball fanatics would rather recognize the unbeaten North Suburban Conference championship, all conference and allstate accolades and the No. 5 rating than just one shot by Chad Lee that ended the season.

So MHS will salute its Mustangs for a 28-2 season March 20 at 6 p.m. The ceremony in the gymnasium was organized by John Logan and Mike Donnell Donnell is the father of Jay Donnell, a reserve junior guard for MHS.

The enthusiasm for the basketball program will continue," Donnell said.

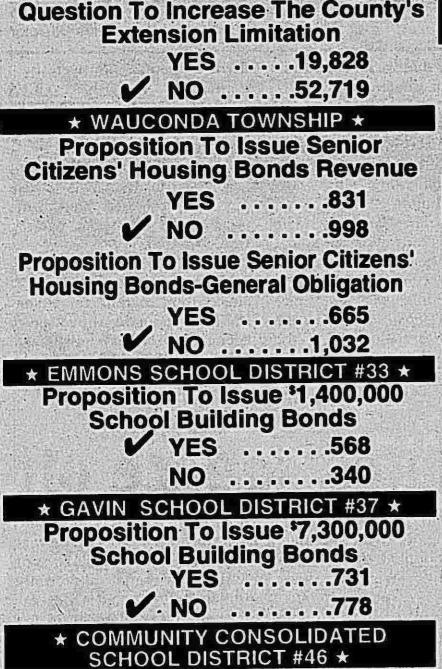

Donnell said the heart of the Mustangs lineup, led by Kyle Kessel, has been entertaining fans since fifth and sixth-grade days at Santa Maria, Diamond Lake, Carl Sandburg elementary schools.

Grinnell is GOP choice for top cop

MARY FOLEY

Staff Reporter

After a sometimes close race, incumbent Sheriff Clint Grinnell has once again become the Republican choice for Lake County Sheriff. Grinnell will now face off with the Democratic choice Richard Jablonski in the general election.

Grinnell's platform for the primary was his experience in law enforcement. At a time in which Lake County is growing at an unprecedented rate, Grinnell felt that the county needed a more. experienced Sheriff.

Grinnell won by a healthy margin of 56.18 percent. Out of the 46,372 votes, Grinnell garnered 26,054.

"I am very pleased and very tired," quipped Grinnell. "I think now we can move forward. Our job now is to get the Republican party back together. To get the deputies out of politics and back into the department."

Grinnell was referring to the "10 percenters." Roughly 10 percent of the sheriffs deputies were actively supporting Sindles.

According to Grinnell, unless a deputy broke the law during the campaign, the deputies will not be reprimanded for their activities. Sindles garnered a respectable 43.82 percent of the votes. Prior to the election Sindles hammered at the organizational problems within the department. He focused on the manpower shortage within the highway department as well as inability of the warrants depart-lenge from Democratic candidate Richard Jablonski. Jablonski has had a stormy year after being fired from his position as chief of police in Lindenhurst, as well as the recent investigation by the State's Attorney regarding his current position as chief of police in Round Lake Beach. At this time he is on administrative leave.

Grinnell is optimistic about his chances in the general election in November although he is not taking the challenge lightly: " We will be taking him very seriously," said Grinnell.

Voters say no to the juvenile detention project

MARY FOLEY

Staff Reporter

It might have been the result of the relatively obscure manner in which the juvenile detention center referendum was required to be worded on the ballot, or the way in which it would be funded. Whatever the reason, the final tally added up to rejection by vot-

The referendum was voted down by an overwhelming majority of 72.67 percent. Of the 72,547 voters, 52,719 said no.

The failed referendum would have provided for an increase in the Hulse facility from an 18 bed ' facility to a 36 bed facility, adding an additional courtroom (from a single courtroom to two courtrooms), an additional classroom and courtroom office space would be added. The proposal also included providing for day treatment, a Structured Military Residential Treatment (SMART), and expanded home detention and intensive probation services.

While almost no one could argue that a county with roughly 500,000 people in it needs a juvenile facility with more than 18 beds, the funding mechanism had been attacked by both organized opposition such as IRATE and individual citizens. The problem was that while the tax cap will return the next levy year after the referendum, a larger aggregate base is created. The following year, the tax cap would have been applied to the new aggregate extension base, thereby permitting the tax increase to "spill" over into subsequent years.

Another concern of taxpayers was whether or not the generated funds would continue to be applied to the juvenile justice system by future county boards. The present board has promised, by resolution, to apply the income to the juvenile facility, but there was no guarantee that future boards would be bound by that resolution.

In the end, it could be that Lake County residents have just said no to any more taxes.

Waterway Agency gains big

TINA L. SWIECH

Staff Reporter

"The sun was shining before the sun came up," said the elated Chairman of the Waterway Agency, Dr. William C. Dam.

Keeping a close watch on the polls March 15, Dr. Dam saw some big waves being made on the side of the minority few who don't agree with the agency.

Nearly 75 percent of all voters on the Lake County side said 'yea" to the question "Shall the Chain O' Lakes Fox River Waterway Management Agency be continued?"

McHenry County voters passed the referendum by a whopping 79 percent.

Dam and his assistant, Executive Director Karen Kabbes, worked diligently for a long time, getting the word out to residents about the agency. Now "I get to be a mother again," said Kabbes who has been traveling to and from the state capital and numerous towns and villages giving her spiel on the accomplishments of the agency and noting the past few

Dr. Dam said over the past Storm Water Management year and a half he has gone to at least 150 functions and various village board meetings, asking for support of the agency.

"We're really pleased that to do. voters understand this is a user

Without Kabbes, said Dam, obtaining permits and the like would have been extremely hard Dam also thanked the hun-fee agency that we'll keep locally based," explained Kabbes.

Now that the sunset clause won't effect the agency by closing it down at the end of this year, officials are eager to find a permanent location for the Waterway building.

The current Grand Ave. site in Fox Lake is only a rented space, explained the executive director.

Kudos were doled out graciously by the chairman. "I owe one to Bob Depke," Dr. Dam said.

"She's a God-send," the chairman about the hiring of Kabbes last year, formerly chief engineer for the Lake County dreds of people who were both members of the CCCA (Concerned Citizens for the Continuation of the Agency) and just concerned residents.

About $26,000 in donations was raised for the CCCA to help pay for brochures and other paperwork about the agency, Dam reported.

Crane on top in four way race

Representative Philip M. Crane staved off all competitors Tuesday night in what has been described as the most difficult race of his career.

On values

Aiding the 25 year political veteran in the Republican primary for 8th congressional district were three challengers that appear to have broken up the anti-incumbent vote.

In Lake county, Crane, 66, easily outdrew his closest opponent with 42 percent of the vote, with state senator Peter G. Fitzgerald tallying 29 percent, Gary Skoien 21 percent, and Judy McCracken garnering 7 percent.

If successful in the fall general election, Crane will begin his 13th term and 26th year in Congress.

Two south county residents Porter easily wins over Sullivan

Representative John E. Porter easily prevailed over rival Kathleen Sullivan in the Republican primary for 10th congressional district, drawing 65 percent of the Lake county

After votes were tallied Tuesday night, Porter blasted his opponent.

"Unlike baseball, in politics it's two strikes and you're out, and Kathleen Sullivan just saw the last ball go by her," said Porter.

Porter credited his victory to a hard fought campaign and wanted to thank his campaign organization and Lake county voters.

If sucessful in the fall general election, Porter will begin his ninth full term in Congress and vowed to continue voting in favor of fiscal conservatism and decreased spending.

Clerk candidates square off

will be facing off for the Lake County Clerk's Office spot in the November general election. Both ran unopposed in the primary election.

Willard Helander, executive director of the Central Lake County Transportation Management Association, has been selected to be the Republican candidate for the Lake County Clerk's office. The Republicans are hoping to fill, what has been long been a Democratic stronghold. "There is no disadvantage at all being a Republican," explained Helander. "This is about electing opportunity in 24 years."

According to Helander, her current position at the Central Lake County Transportation Management Association, has given her a great deal of experience in both the public and private sector. The position has afforded her an opportunity to develop her administrative skills as well as her legal abilities: Skills, that she believes, are vital to the position of Lake County Clerk.

Antioch High School loses another referendum

ALEC JUNGE

The margin was closer, but the Antioch High School referendum failed again.

The final tally was 4,190 "no" votes and 3,773 "yes" votes. The percentage breaks down to 53 percent to 47 percent. In November, the tally was 56 to 44

The referendum was to go for the education fund to reduce the deficit and increase class offerings and teachers.

Margin closer than last election, 53 to 47 percent "It is going to affect us in two ways," said Phil Delany. "We were going to utilize funds for added courses which will have to be scaled back, curtailed, or put off to next year or later."

Delany said the board had hoped to add updated computers and increase the technology, but the board may have to put those plans on hold.

Delany felt the board will have to consider whether it will go for another referendum. He said he felt the referendum committee took "the high road" and tried to present the facts in a fair and accurate manner.

"We talked to as many people in the community as we could and felt we presented them with as much facts and information as possible. We didn't aggressively attack the opposition in the community who presented information which was distorted and, to

Delany felt the issue is still hot with the number of ballots cast. He said the school board will have to sit down and evaluate how it will proceed. He said there is wide support for the referendum, but the referendum committee must also deal with a strong opposition.

A sore point for Delany were flyers distributed throughout Antioch and other areas listing teacher salaries. "We don't want to get into mud slinging. He felt the move was inappropriate and an invasion of privacy . . . "I wouldn't want my W-2 floating around the community."

Superintendent Dr. Robert Schley wouldn't comment on the referendum. Best Education Sensible Taxes (BEST) officials couldn't be reached for comment.

Emmons School to get new addition to ease crowding

MARY FOLEY

Staff Reporter

The extreme overcrowding at Emmons School District is soon to be relieved. Voters have approved the building addition referendum for $1.4 million. The referendum passed easily by a large majority of 62.56 percent.

"We are very happy," said Superintendent Matt Tabar. "A big thanks to all the parents who worked on the referendum and especially to Debbie Diemer and Barb Comstock. We tried to run an open and positive campaign. The strategy was very successful."

Emmons School currently has 12-full sized classrooms, one multi-purpose room used as a lunch room, gymnasium and stage, and a portable classroom unit and is simply bursting at the seams. Teachers have offices in closets, band is taught precariously on the stage, a combination third and fourth grade was created to handle additional students. and the coatrooms have been moved out into the hall to allow for more classroom space.

The district has experienced a large increase in its enrollment this year. According to Tabar, the increases are a result of homeowner turn-over of existing homes and new homeowners in the Heron Harbor and Fairway Estates subdivisions.

Emmons instituted numerous changes before going to the taxpayers. Community Committees have spent the past several years looking for solutions to the Emmons overcrowding situation. In 1990, the school undertook a life safety project that added two additional classrooms. Administrators increased the class size as well as added the relocatable classroom. Presently, the portable classrooms hold the school's library as well as some special education classes. Essentially, Emmons has run out of space.

Officials even considered using the gymnasium for classrooms. The school would then build a pole barn to house the gym. However, that plan was not really practical.

"It was not a viable idea," said Tabar. "It turned out not to be much cheaper than our building plan."

After trying almost every feasible alternative to combat the space problem the school board authorized this referendum.

Construction is expected to begin in the very near future. The foundation will be sub-bidded first while the architect will continue to work on the final plans. The project is expected to be complete in August of 1995.

"The next year will be a tough year with the overcrowding," cautioned Tabar. "But, just knowing we only have to go through it for one year will help us get through."

Grayslake District 46 loses its referendum

ALEC JUNGE

Staff Reporter

Grayslake District 46 has failed in its attempts to get a building bond and to increase the education fund.

The vote for both measures failed at 56 to 44 percent. The final tally had 1,655 no votes to 1.304 yes votes for the building fund. In the education fund the vote was 1,643 no and 1,339 yes.

Superintendent Hochschild said the voters have spoken and the board will be faced with some difficult choices. The main problem she said will be increased class sizes.

"We are looking at class sizes of 36 to 38 in the elementary school for next year," Hochschild said. . . . "People have to recognize with growth in our community we are looking at increased class sizes."

The $2.9 million bond referendum would have been used for a 20-classroom addition to the middle school. The education fund increase was to be 30 cents per $100 to attack the deficit which is at $400,000 and will likely grow to $600,000.

The board had already made $600,000 in cuts in non-academic areas. The board may have to consider funds in programs for the students.

There are presently 1,901 approved new planning units and officials expect about 900 new elementary students.

Hochschild said the board will have to evaluate the decision made by the voters and make decisions accordingly. She said the board will consider bringing the referendum issue back again in the fall.

The referendum campaign was stymied by what Hochschild feels was a lack of time to present the issues to enough voters. She said if the board had more time the results may change.

"We stated our purpose and goals with what resources we had. We were working against time. If we had the time to really talk with more people it may have made the difference." Hochschild.

CARE not defeated after Gavin loss

TINA L. SWIECH

Staff Reporter

"It is very disappointing," said CARE (Community Action for Responsible Education) member Rhonda Heaney, upon hearing the news of the once again failed referendum.

"We were so close," Heaney said. A little over 48 percent of the residents voted yes to the $7.3 million new building referendum District 37 needs so desperately.

Totals on the ballot decisions equaled 731 passing the referendum and 778 saying 'no.'

CARE, educating the people about the need for a new school at Central and repairs and additions to South and North, only had three months, according to Heaney, to get the word out to people.

"It's so frustrating because they (residents) would have had good interest rates, good building costs, and they blew it!"

-Rhonda Heaney

A similar referendum was presented on two other occasions and also came close to passing, but not quite close enough.

"The need is still there," explained Heaney of the overcrowding and inferior conditions at the district schools.

"It's so frustrating because they (residents) would have had good interest rates, good building costs, and they blew it!" said the CARE member.

Heaney along with other concerned parents and residents are afraid that if the district tries to build a new school at a much later date, it may cost them a lot more money.

But CARE is not giving up. Plans are to have them present ideas to the school board to place the same referendum on the ballots in November.

Johnsburg voters say no, school to go to state

TINA L. SWIECH

Staff Reporter

It looks like Johnsburg District 12 students will continue to use mobile classrooms, as least for now.

Much to the dismay of supporters, all of the three referendums on the Johnsburg ballots remained as print, with no plans for materializing.

A building bonds issue to put additions on all five of the district schools at a total of $16,500,000 brought 1,200 "yes" votes, and 1,831 "no."

A proposition to increase the education fund tax rate was 1,076 to 1,936; and voters saying "yes" to the increase in operation and maintenance fund tax rate was 1,000 with 2,001 voting against it.

The unsuccessful referenda brought about for overcrowding in the system prompted Superintendent Dr. Robert Gough to state his concern over the defeat. "We feel we obviously have to deal with growth and underfunding. Residents felt the taxpayers were not the way to handle it," said Gough.

"This only leads us to put pressure for state funding," explained the superintendent.

The problems in District 12, won't go away by themselves, he added.

It seemed to take forever, but finally, after 11 p.m., the results were in and Judy Martini unseated incumbent Jim Fields for the Republican spot for District 1's County Board seat. Martini will now be facing Democrat Grant Farrell in the general election in November.

Towards the end, tempers flared and nerves wore short. The race was close, Martini won with 50.12 percent of the votes. Fields logged in with a healthy 45 per-Contender Kenneth Domanchuk received 207 votes for a 4.89 percentage.

"I want to thank all of you throughout the years," Martini told her supporters. "I couldn't have done without you. I promise to be the best county board member they have ever Martini cried tears of joy, but she was not alone. County board member Suzi Schmidt was on hand at Martini central, and her eves weren't exactly dry either.

"We ran a good campaign," said Martini. "We tried to keep it on the up and up. All the loyalty and hard work of my constituents paid off."

Fields served as District 1 county board representative for 14 years. He did win the precinct committeemen's race in precinct 12 by a vote of 196 to Wayne Forresta's 170. Fields was unavailable for comment.

Martini will now be facing Farrell in the general election in November. Farrell is currently serving his third term as an elected official on the executive Health and Welfare board for the Plumbers Local 93. He is a member of the Experimental Aircraft Association and is finishing his second term as president of the Illinois Branch of the Orton Dyslexia Society.

"I am looking forward to a good campaign," said Farrell. "There will be two of us running that have never held a county seat. I will be out campaigning to let voters know my positions.

Diana O'Kelly scores big upset, defeats Colin McRae

Voters in District 10 handed over their County Board seat to challenger Diana O'Kelly on Tuesday. After the votes were counted O'Kelly had a healthy 63 percent, (1,728), over incumbent Colin McRae with 1,025, putting her in the Republican slot for the November election. There were no candidates on the Democratic ticket.

Upon receiving official news of her victory Tuesday evening

she said, "I sincerely want to thank all of the people who came out to vote for me. It was so good to meet everyone face to face and I am happy my efforts paid off. I am a fighter and I plan to fight for the people. I promise to do my very best as a County Board member."

She attributed her victory in large part to her willingness to get out and talk to the people she wanted to represent, estimating that she met 4,000 people during the campaign. Her efforts included going door-to-door in 10 precincts, and meeting people at grocery stores, schools and at the Post Office, trying to find out their concerns.

"People were very supportive, but you don't know how many will go out and vote," she said, adding that the results indicated people were ready for a change in the way they are represented.

A number of her supporters were with her to celebrate.

"I hope Diana's winning this election is interpreted as a step in the victory over crowded schools, congested roads and tighter taxes," said Mundelein resident Don Smith.

Martha Marks, a current County Board member involved in alleged shoving incident with McRae earlier this month, added her congratulations, "I'm thrilled." It couldn't have happened to a better candidate."

Other comments came from friends sharing O'Kelly's moment of victory.

Tom Carveal: "She found out if you want anything to happen you have to try and make it happen yourself. You can't just talk about it."

Leslie Layton: "I'm happy that we now have an honest political voice representing the people of Fremont Township."

Michael O'Kelly, her husband and most loyal supporter, said emphatically, "She's sincere and a hard worker and will do a better job than anyone else I can think O'Kelly was still in a state of euphoria the following morning.

"It's just great," she said of the results. "I just couldn't believe the numbers.

It showed people have a lot of confidence in me, I'm not going to let them down," she said, adding that she planned to start going to board and committee meetings immediately "to get up to speed so I can jump in running full force when I take office in December."

McRae, the former mayor of Mundelein, had hoped voters would consider his record on the County Board, the Board of Health, Finance Committee, and the Rte. 53 Corridor Planning Council, as well as his accomplishments as Forest Preserve president. He could not be reached for comment.

Neal blasts opponents after winning primary

Staff Reporter

Shortly after proclaiming victory in Tuesday's Republican primary, Robert Neal criticized the opposition who supported another candidate.

"They were negative campaigners. Millie Corder could not say one thing positive about herself. She spent all of her time on negative campaigning. That is not the way America was built. America was built on the pluses of people, not on their negatives," Neal said.

Corder was supported by CARE - Citizens Assn. for a Rural Environment.

Neal won with 1,181, 51 percent; Corder had 944 votes, 41 percent. Newcomer Scott Paul had 164 votes, 7.6 percent.

"We are not going to quit until we let the whole world know just who they are," Neal said of CARE.

"There were so many, I would not try to rattle off the worst ones."

A campaign of 25 volunteers were on the re-elect Neal com-

Neal, of Wadsworth, will be facing Sam Payne. Payne, a longtime former county board member, defeated Mike Hewitt for the Democratic nomination, 1501 -416.

Payne campaigned saying municipalities should work more closely together to accommodate growth.

"Sam is a gentleman. I can look forward to talking about issues, qualifications. I feel confident Sam will run the same kind of campaign and the public will be able to make their decisions accordingly."

"I'd like to thank my supporters. We will have to try and go at it another time," Corder said.

Newton reclaims GOP bid in landslide

The St. Patrick's Day celebration arrived a little early for Pamela Newton, as the Lake County Board member won the Republican nomination for District 18.

Her "little headache" the following morning after the March 15 primary may have been the result of a hangover-a long campaign hangover, that is.

Newton garnered nearly twice as many votes as her challenger, former Lake County Board member Roberta "Bobbie" O'Reilly. Newton carned 1,442 votes to capture 65.31 percent of the ballot. O'Reilly had 766 votes.

Newton will face Democrat candidate Alvin Israel for the County Board seat in the general election in November.

More so than her successful bid, Newton said she was "thrilled with the margin of victoгу."

"It shows a re-affirmation that your efforts are being acknowledged," Newton said. "That's when public service is a pleasure."

O'Reilly, who served on the County Board from 1988 to 1992, called Newton's victory a "land-

"The voters spoke and made their choice," O'Reilly said.

She also commented on the District 1 and District 10 races, where longtime board members Jim Fields and Colin McRae were upset by Judy Martini and Diana O'Kelly.

"It will be interesting to see the makeup of the board," O'Reilly said. She went on to wish Newton well in her second term.

Newton credited her win to teamwork across the board. Her support was threefold, she said, ranging from her pack of volunteers, to her Republican precinct endorsements and to her constituent support.

"The bottom line for me is that my personal style of representation has been endorsed," said Newton, adding that she will continue her style of representation by maintaining her quarterly update meetings with each village in her district and bringing "government back to the peo-

Although she must campaign against Democrat Alvin Israel for the general election, Newton said she looks forward to implementing her agenda on the County Board for her second term.

Two of her primary goals include purchasing 1,200 acres of open space through last year's $30 million Forest Preserve referendum and heading off juvenile crime.

"I am excited to be a part of the team to purchase the openland," Newton said. "I want to see additional land preserved for our children and our heritage."

She serves on the Lake County Forest Preserve District.

The defeat of the referendum to expand the Hulse Juvenile Detention Center may prove to be an obstacle to Newton's crime agenda, but she said she will push for a computer network system that links local municipaliwith the Sheriff's Department and the State's Attorney Office.

She said the system will allow municipalities to track the movement of gangs by having up-todate computer files on the record, habits and trails of gang members.

"If a gang member from North Chicago moves to Mundelein," she said, "Mundelein knows before they get there"

She also said she looks forward to working with the new freshmen board members.

"It's going to be nice not to be a freshman," Newton said.

Calabresa's low-budget pays off in board race

Carol Calabresa's low budget, grassroots campaign for the Republican candidacy for the Lake County Board in District 15 paid big dividends.

With no radio or television advertisements, and only two mailings, Calabresa will be serving her fifth term on the Lake County Board by capturing 58 percent of the vote versus her Republican challenger's 42 percent

Her opponent was Martin

Paulson, president of the Lake County Board of Health.

"I was concerned because I didn't have the budget he does," Calabresa said. "I have to get elected by going door-to-door."-

She said she had been charged with consistently voting against the board on development proposals, hoping instead to limit growth on already congested areas of the county.

"Some people don't think I represent this district," Calabresa said. "I represent this district very accurately."
